HOT FIGHT LOOMS IN CAPITOL

South to Ask State Division Unless Demands Granted, Threat

L. A. DELEGATION LEADS IN BATTLE

Change Would Make Orange County Senatorial District, Claim

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Reapportionment will be an issue in the general election two years hence if the present legislature dodges it. So say Los Angeles legislators who are determined that the state draw up new legislative districts.

"We will go so far as asking for a division of the state if we don't get reapportionment," one Los Angeles lawmaker declared today. "We are determined to see that this legislature does not dodge the issue. The state constitution is plain. It says the legislature must reapportion districts after a federal census."

"We had a federal census in 1920. Because San Francisco and northern legislators didn't want to lose some of their seats in the legislature, the constitution was violated."

Demand Full Share
"If the legislature passes the bill again, we'll get an initiative measure on the ballot two years from now and get the representation we are entitled to. The south can pass such a measure."

"But if we are beaten at the polls, we will move for a division of the state," the southern legislator declared.

Reapportionment is considered one of the big issues of the present session. The Los Angeles delegation has come to Sacramento prepared for a bitter fight.

Governor Richardson recently told the southern legislators that he favored reapportionment. However, opponents of the movement are now quite sure the governor will take no part in the fight.

Has Rural Opposition
The Los Angeles plan has the opposition of the rural districts, it is understood. Farmers do not want cities to have more power and ordinary reapportionment would give Los Angeles and vicinity about twenty-five per cent of the legislature.

San Francisco, of course, is also opposed to the Los Angeles plan. There is some question, it is said, as to whether reapportionment can be placed on the ballot by initiative. The Los Angeles lawmakers think it can, but if it cannot, they are prepared to fight for a state division, say the more determined southerners.

Division of California is another thing that may be legally impossible, some believe. Some lawyers declare that there is no provision in the national constitution for such action. West Virginia was cut out in stress of war, it is pointed out, and that division has never been made entirely legal, it is claimed.

Back in 1853 the California legislature passed a resolution calling an election on state division—counties south of the Tehachapi to form one state and those of the north another. The election was never held. Historians say the secretary of state forgot to call it.

There was little activity around the state house today. No sessions were scheduled in either the senate or assembly. Most of the legislators living around Sacramento left last night for their homes to spend the week-end.

With the reapportionment of committees in the senate already completed, the naming of assembly committees is all that remains before the introduction of bills in the lower house is commenced. Fifteen were introduced yesterday in the senate.

CHANGE WOULD GIVE ORANGE COUNTY A SENATOR.
Reapportionment is a matter in which Orange county is deeply interested, it was pointed out here today.

Claims Education Is Straightening Out Odd Shapes In Legs

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Day by day, in every way, legs are getting straighter and straighter.

Utopia for the future generation of parents is near.

Dr. Max Thorek, child specialist, today declared that bow legs, knock knees, pigeon toes and other deformities of the legs will soon be fit displays for a museum.

Modern hygiene and education of parents to keep their children from walking too early is also partly responsible.

Dr. Thorek, who has conducted many operations to straighten the bowed limbs of women during the short skirt era, said there will be little need for such surgical steps in the future.

SCHOOL MEN BUY LOT ON N. SYCAMORE

Property Adjoining Washington Institution provides Additional Playground Space.

With the purchase today by the board of education of an adjoining lot which faces on Sycamore street, the playground of the new Washington grammar school today was materially enlarged.

The lot, which is 50 by 125 feet, was acquired by the board from Mrs. Ada Borden Davison, a former teacher in the city's public schools, at a cost of $6,000, according to F. L. Andrews, secretary.

No additional playground equipment is planned for the school at present, Andrews said. The school property previous to the purchase of the lot was 182 by 250 feet.

COUNTY OFFICE HELP BATTLE PLAN TOLD

Bringing back the word that district attorneys all over the state are ready to co-operate in a fight to reverse the decision of the supreme court limiting the powers of county officers to add to their office help during their terms of office, District Attorney A. P. Nelson was home today from a trip that took him as far north as Oakland.

"Everywhere," Nelson said, "it is recognized that the decision of the supreme court is working a decided hardship on the business operations of the counties. An action has been started in Alameda county. It is a mandamus proceeding, and will be heard in the supreme court February 5."

Action Demands Decision.
"One phase of the action calls for a decision as to whether a county officer, under an act of the legislature, can add a deputy to his force, and another phase concerns the right to increase a deputy's salary."

"The hope of those making the fight is that the supreme court will tender a decision reversing the opinion expressed in the October case. In the October case, the court went outside of the point raised. That is, the declarations under which the office help situation was thrown into the air, were mere dictum."

Court View May Differ.
"The supreme court, therefore, in deciding the mandamus case, may take a different view from that expressed in the October case."

Nelson interviewed district attorneys at Bakersfield, Fresno, Modesto, Merced, Oakland, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura.

'CUTTING IN' CHARGE RESULTS FROM SMASH
A. L. Goddicksen, who appeared before Justice J. B. Cox this morning to answer a charge of "cutting in," brought as a result of an automobile smash at the corner of the Anaheim road near the county hospital, was released on his own recognizance for appearance late today.

Goddicksen surrendered himself as soon as he learned that a warrant had been issued for his arrest. He asked time to consult an attorney before entering a plea.

Goddicksen's car, and one owned by William Steuwig were wrecked in the collision, which resulted in the criminal charges.

OIL BARONS FACE U. S. CONTROL

Gas Price Probe Seen as Leading to Action by Congress

(By United Press Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Federal supervision of the oil industry in some manner similar to that in which the government now restrains the railroads through the interstate commerce commission may be recommended to congress by a special committee now investigating gasoline prices.

Some leaders in the probe believe this will prove the only method by which congress can legislate against soaring gasoline prices, it was learned today. Though the program will not take definite form until the committee concludes its hearings in about three weeks, it is learned the following three points are being considered:

1. Government supervision of gasoline and oil prices through further tariff restrictions.

2. Absorption of the huge dividends now being declared by some oil companies in lower prices without restraining oil concerns from a "fair profit."

3. Lowering the cost of operation by amalgamation of many large gasoline and oil companies which are now separate legal entities, though they are in truth closely intertwined by mutual stockholdings.

Legal experts who have attended the hearings believe the government can proceed in no judicial way to obtain a lower cost to the consumer of gasoline. There is no way to reach the present situation unless congress moves to regulate prices and distribution, they say.

Legislation seeking to declare the oil industry a public necessity and giving the government the reins of control may be introduced in the senate before the end of the present session, it is thought. It will be impossible, however, to obtain any action on the proposal until the next session of congress.

JUGO-SLAVIANS PREPARE FOR NEW CLASH

(By United Press Leased Wire)

ROME, Jan. 13.—The Messagero's Belgrade correspondent declares that Jugoslavia is feverishly preparing for war, owing to prospects of renewed Turco-Greek conflict.

The Belgrade government plans reconvening the chamber of deputies and the chamber of the Jugoslav southern army has been directed to Belgrade to confer with the minister of war on the impending threatening events on the southern frontier, the correspondent said.

ORGANIZER OF CALIF. FRUIT GROWERS DIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—A. H. Nattseger, member of the state industrial accident commission and during the war, chairman of the state council of defense, died last night at his home in Los Angeles, according to word received by the industrial accident commission here today.

Nattseger had been a member of the commission since 1919. Previous to this time, he had been active in organizing fruit growers co-operative associations in the state.

His home, before entering state politics, was at Riverside.

HUGE SUMS AUTHORIZED BY SENATE

Post Office and Agriculture Department Appropriations More Than $658,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The agricultural department appropriation bill with congressional free seeds eliminated was passed today by the senate. It carries a total of $73,518,000.

The bill, as passed by the house, carried $69,000,000. The senate appropriations added $3,518,000 and $685,000 was added during consideration of the measure on the floor.

Most of $685,000 is to be used to prevent spread of the corn borer, boll weevil and crop pests.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The postoffice department appropriation bill, carrying more than $658,000,000, was passed today by the senate.

The amount was increased $450,000 over the house estimate.

AUTO ACCIDENT HURTS 3, PUTS 2 IN JAIL

(By United Press Leased Wire)

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—Two Long Beach men are prisoners in the San Pedro jail and three residents of the harbor district are proving fatal to one of them, as the result of I. R. Pilkington, one of the proprietors of the Good Luck Bakery, driving a truck through a crowd which had collected when his companion, Scott Field, drove into a lamp post last night, harbor police assert.

Michael McDonald, aged 49, is a patient at the Hillside hospital in San Pedro with injuries which physicians declare included a broken back, received when the truck moved down the crowd of spectators. Antonio Sanchez and George Smith received less serious injuries.

IMPORTS INCREASE UNDER NEW TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—American imports showed a big increase during October, the first full month in which the Fordney tariff was operative, the department of commerce announced today.

The total imports were $319,000,000, as compared with $295,000,000 for September and $188,000,000 for October, 1921.

Imports for the period, September 22 to November 1, totaled $388,000,000. Approximately $69,000,000 came in the last nine days of September under the new tariff, making the total September imports $298,000,000 or nearly $20,000,000 greater than the imports in August.

Import trade for the first ten months of 1922, amounted to $2,570,049,455 against $2,060,704,029 in the corresponding period of last year.

The figures announced today are the first since September 22, 1921, complications having been delayed because the new tariff increased the number of classified articles from 710 to 984.

FRAUD CHARGE BRINGS DEATH TO FINANCIER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 13.—Allen Y. Haynes, one of the most picturesque figures in finance in the Northwest, died in a hospital here today from cerebral hemorrhage which he suffered a few minutes after arrest on charge of fraud.

Haynes was reputed to have spent a million dollars founding and operating the Inland Herald, a newspaper, at Spokane, Wash., which finally suspended publication.

From Spokane he went to Alberta, where he became well known, but suffered further financial reverses and had been working here as a business efficiency expert.

Congresswoman Opens Campaign for Referendum On War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—With the peace of the world again threatened by the situation in Europe, Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck, congresswoman from Illinois, rose up in congress today with a proposal that the United States shall seek agreements with other governments providing that there shall be no more war except as it shall be approved by national referendum.

Mrs. Huck will introduce a resolution directing the president to inform all the nations that the United States will delegate to the people the sole power to declare war against any country that will give the same power to its people.

The "lady from Illinois" said she does not expect that congress will vote approval of her resolution "tomorrow, next day or next year."

"It may not be for five years, or ten," she said, "but approval will come some day and I think this is a psychological time to start," she said.

NEW MEXICO SOLON DIES OF STROKE

Apoplexy Takes Nestor Montoya, Lone Representative in Congress From State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Representative Nestor Montoya, Republican, New Mexico, died today at his residence here following a stroke of apoplexy.

The stroke came upon him while he was shaving.

Montoya as congressman-at-large, was the only member of the house from New Mexico. His home was at Albuquerque, where for many years he had been editor of a newspaper published in the Spanish language. He was 61 years old and leaves a widow and five children.

He had served two years in congress.

AMENDMENT OF DEBT LAW IS HARDING AIM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—President Harding believes that legislation amending the debt funding law so that final settlements of the war debts can be reached with Great Britain and other nations will be passed at this session of congress, it was officially stated at the White House today.

The president spent an hour with house leaders, conferring with them on amendments to the debt law and the general legislative situation.

It was stated that a definite decision had been made to make no move in congress toward modifying the debt funding restriction until the debt commission had made a report on the British negotiations.

$10,000,000 SENATE ACT TO AID FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A joint resolution, appropriating $10,000,000 for the purchase of sodium nitrate and calcium arsenate for farmers, was passed today by the senate.

The chemicals will be bought by the government and distributed to farmers as fertilizer and pest destroyers at cost.

The resolution now goes to the house for action.

"30" BULLETIN

EL CENTRO, Jan. 13.—Imperial Valley was on a man hunt today as all officers of the county started search for Booker Bosdick, 40, negro, charged with attacks on two little white girls, 8 and 10 years old, of Imperial, at various times over a period of three months.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 13.—The seaplane Columbus with seven passengers, pilot and mechanic on board sunk twenty miles off Havana, according to word received here this afternoon. The fate of those aboard is in doubt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The senate today confirmed the following postmasters: Fred W. McCullah, Long Beach, and Sherman G. Batchelor, San Bernardino.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 13.—Two men killed, seven others injured and a dozen passengers suffered bruises when a Pere Marquette passenger train crashed into the rear of a Pere Marquette freight train near here today.

CASH DEBT PAYMENTS DELAYED

Allies Give Teutons Extra Time to Pay 500 Million Marks

BRITISH REFUSE TO TAKE PART IN MOVE

Reichstag Backs Chancellor Cuno as Foe Invades Coal Fields

(By United Press Leased Wire)

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Germany is to have a temporary moratorium with postponement of cash reparations payments until January 31, the reparations commission determined today.

Premier Poincare's plan for exacting guarantees and establishing a customs chain about the Ruhr was discussed by the members, the British declining to have any part in the matters concerned with occupation of new German territory.

The vote on a fortnight's moratorium as far as payment of 500,000,000 gold marks due Monday is "indecisive," was unanimous after Bradbury, British member, withdrew from the discussion.

American Observer Boydon asked permission of the commission to publish the text of his remarks before the last session on the subject of America's attitude towards the Ruhr invasion, explaining there had been conflicting reports concerning it. Permission was granted.

Plan United Action
Today's postponement of the next reparations payment was taken to enable France to gain complete accord of Italy and Belgium. Poincare's new plan for a conditional moratorium to Germany with productive securities, it was stated. Although the new scheme is modeled after the previous one it includes new features designated to enable the allies to ensure that the big individuals will pay their full share.

The reparations delegates decided to co-operate with the Franco-Italian-Belgian control mission in Essen.

FRENCH AGREE TO PAY FOR SEIZED COAL

ESSEN, Jan. 13.—A clash between French and German in the Ruhr was averted today when the French commission agreed to pay cash for coal deliveries.

At a conference with German operators, the French first threatened arrest of mine owners and superintendents and confiscation of coal supplies if work was not resumed on Monday.

The French explained they were willing to pay temporarily, to avoid closure of the mines.

The German offer to continue mining the coal if it is paid for, is subject to approval of the national coal commission while the French are referring to Paris for instructions.

Essen was quiet today, only a few scattered French patrols being in evidence. They co-operated with German traffic police.

FRENCH CONSIDER PLANS TO EXTEND INVASION.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—French troops may occupy Bochum today or tomorrow as a punitive measure for Germany's refusal to make required coal deliveries, it was learned today.

(General De Goutte, commanding the French army of occupation in the Ruhr, said yesterday, the French army would not advance further than Essen if Germany did not take provocative steps).

Premier Poincare, General Maginot and Le Trocquer reported to the cabinet that results of the occupation of Essen were satisfactory, as were the conversations with the industrial representatives of the Ruhr. It was understood, however, as a result of the latter, and of the German government's notes regarding German inability to deliver more coal, the zone of occupation will be extended to include Bochum.

house parish that didn't keep his mouth shut and quit talking about the Klan was going to be whipped until he couldn't set down.

"I have changed the wording to make it fit to repeat, the exact language being more vicious and venomous."

Suspects Physician.
"Mr. Stuckey, this took place after the disappearance of Daniel and Richards and after the attempted shooting of Dr. McKoin."

"We are not ready to admit that there was ever an attempt to assassinate Dr. McKoin," the witness said with a smile.

Asked regarding the last statement, the witness said the theory in Mer Rouge was that Dr. McKoin fired the shots that riddled his car himself.

The witness said Dr. McKoin had made many enemies by his efforts at reform.

A. L. Smith, president of the Quachita parish school board, told of hearing reports that "a man named Norseworthy" was out hunting for McKoin to kill him and that McKoin was hunting for Norseworthy.

"I am a Klansman—and proud of it," he declared.

Despite the continuous rapping on his desk by Judge Fred Odum once the applause was started, it continued for several minutes.

A dramatic conference between leaders in the sensational fight to unmask the Ku Klux Klan in Morehouse parish will be held here today.

Cyclops Asks Parley.
Attorney General Cocco whose probe of the brutal murders of Daniel and Richards has turned into an attempted exposure of the "invisible government" in an effort to end the reign of terror in that community and Captain J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Klan, will discuss phases of the open hearing now being held.

Skipwith himself sought the conference declaring he would be glad to divulge all information and acts of the Klan since its organization two years ago.

He declared the state was making a mistake in delving into affairs of the parish Klan or into the cause of an old feud between two factions in the community.

Reopening of this old feud will result in bloodshed, he told state's attorneys in seeking the conference today.

unanimous.
French journalists were barred from the press gallery of the reichstag.

The government has sent another note to France and Belgium declaring the seizure of the Ruhr territory violates international law as well as the Versailles treaty.

President Loeb of the reichstag opened the session by directing an appeal to the French people to prevent a catastrophe as the result of Premier Poincare's policy. Chancellor Cuno declared that unless there is a concrete economic understanding the "fire" started by France threatens to consume all Europe.

He asserted that Germany had done her utmost to meet France's claims, financially, economically and politically, offering an industrial understanding and guarantees of peace.

"France is putting might above right," he added.

N. MAIN ORNAMENTAL LIGHT POST BROKEN

The time-honored game of knocking down the ornamental lighting poles on North Main street, was resumed yesterday after a lapse of several months.

A trailer, following a truck, owned by C. R. Weston and driven by his son, E. J. Weston, of Los Angeles, hit the concrete pole just north of the railroad crossing, smashing it near its base, snapped it off. Weston told the police that he was turning out to allow a machine to pass him, when the trailer, whipping from side to side, struck the post.

He agreed to defray the cost of repair, which, Superintendent Dahl said would be about $25.

discussion at the session of the legislature two years ago it was generally conceded that re-apportionment would result in making Orange county a state senatorial district. At this time Orange, Riverside and Imperial counties are one district.

Would Change Status.

Two years ago a good deal of interest was shown here in the possible changes that might take place in the congressional district lines. Congress has never changed the congressional apportionments, and California still retains eleven congressmen only. If congress should take action on reapportionment, this state would have the number increased. In case of changes in congressional lines, the question as to where this county would be placed would be of real consequence, it was stated today.

GOVERNOR SIGNS COMMISSION OF NEW JUDGE

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Governor Richardson today signed the commission of Judge Louis W. Myers of Los Angeles, to the supreme court bench, succeeding Judge Curtis D. Wilbur, new chief justice.

Judge Myers will take the oath of office in San Francisco Monday and immediately assume the duties of his new position.

Appointment of B. D. Brown, as supervisor of Trinity county to fill a vacancy, was also announced from the governor's office today.

Sidelights On What Is Occupying Minds And Time of Solons

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Legislators from San Joaquin valley gathered last night at a local hotel to discuss legislative matters with regard to irrigation, conservation and transportation. Fourteen were present.

Assemblymen are voicing displeasure over the delay the lower house is experiencing in getting down to business. Short morning sessions only have been held, with none scheduled today. Assemblyman Frank L. Coombs of Napa has daily taken issue on the assembly floor with Assemblyman Henry Carter of Los Angeles, who has twice moved that the morning session close with adjournment until the following day. The majority lower house members assert, however, that there is little to be done until Speaker Merriam announces the committees. This will not come before Monday.

Assemblyman C. C. Baker of Salinas will advance a bill making it necessary for fishermen to show a tax receipt before they can obtain a license. He declares that his county loses much money annually because of the fishermen's ability to slip through the tax net, as it were, and escape paying assessments on their equipment.

A measure providing for a rebate on grain sacks for farmers will be introduced by Assemblyman Fred B. Noyes of Yuba City. He claims that most of the grain sold by farmers is sacked before sale. In weighing, a quarter of a pound is deducted for the weight of the sack and the farmer receives nothing for this, Noyes claims.

Governor Richardson's economy inauguration programs cost the state more than they should have, after all. They were printed on cheap, brown paper and were most inexpensive looking, quite in contrast with previous similar announcements. But there were many of them. Each legislator had four extra copies presented to him today.

Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento, has refused the twenty cents mileage allowed him by the state for coming to the capital to attend the legislature. The allowance is made on a basis of ten cents per mile. Inman set a good example of economy and declined to take the money. "I walked to work," said Inman, "and I move that in the future all senators be required to do the same." The proposition was overwhelmingly defeated.

TWO PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY FILED WITH LOCAL REFEREE

While classed as a broker in the petition, the schedule of liabilities in a petition in bankruptcy, on file today with Ben Tarver, referee in bankruptcy for Orange county, indicated that James N. Ellis, of this city, has played a losing game at farming.

His liabilities are scheduled at $44,8810 and assets at $2942.25. Listed with the liabilities are items of indebtedness to the Santa Ana Sugar company of $12,000; Holly Sugar corporation of Huntington Beach $7800; Mellic M. Ellis, $8500; California National bank, $2600.

The petitioner declares that he never has been able to secure from either the Holly Sugar corporation or the Santa Ana Sugar company a statement of the value of beets delivered in 1921.

A petition in bankruptcy filed by J. T. Wyatt, jeweler, of La Habra, gives his liabilities as $4,453.64 and assets as $3269.

Tarver today announced that he had just received appointment as referee for two years. Incidentally, he stated that for the year 1922 up to June, not a single petition in bankruptcy was referred to him, while since that time filings have averaged two a month.

CURED HIS RHEUMATISM!

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army, over 50 years ago. Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try to get rid of your rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuritis, and like complaints by taking treatment supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out the truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism and other disorders, and recover his health and strength from reading 'The Inner Mysteries,' a book now being distributed free by the author, an authority who has devoted over twenty years of his life to the scientific study of this trouble.

Anyone sending name and address to H. P. Clearwater, Ph. D., 1829-B Water Street, Hallowell, Maine, will receive by mail and entirely free of charge one complete copy of 'The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism,' which contains facts overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past. If not a sufferer yourself, you would be helping some afflicted friend by handing this good news and opportunity to him.

NOTE: As the number of copies available to readers of this paper is limited, it is advisable that you act promptly—adv.

LOCAL PASTOR FINDS MEXICAN CONDITIONS VERY MUCH IMPROVED

Declaring that conditions in Mexico were better than he had ever seen before, the Rev. Fr. Henry Eummelen was today enthusiastic in his comments on his six weeks' business and pleasure trip through Sonora and Sinaloa, whence he has just returned.

"There have been good crops this year and the people have plenty to eat," he said.

As to politics in Mexico, the Rev. Fr. Eummelen said that, "there are no politics in Mexico, it is governed by whims."

Stating that Obregon seemed to have the whole-hearted support of the people and was now cleaning house to remove obstacles in the way of recognition by the United States, the Rev. Fr. Eummelen also pointed out the fact that a Mexican president can only be in office for one term and that the people are now grooming a man for the next term.

JUSTICE COURT JURY TO DECIDE HOW BOAT LEFT BEACH MOORING

A jury in justice court at San Juan Capistrano, next week, will be called upon to decide whether Frank Friend, arrested yesterday by Pinder Sheriff E. H. French and Constable Joseph Ryan, at San Onofre, found "Fisherman John" Derkum's newly built dory entangled in a bed of kelp floating in the Pacific ocean, or whether Friend, with Alvin Hemmaway of Los Angeles, took the boat from the beach at Laguna near where "Fisherman John" resides.

Friend was at liberty on his own recognizance today after the setting of an arraignment date on a charge of grand larceny preferred against him by the owner of the dory. The dory was found beached at San Onofre yesterday when Under Sheriff French, Constable Ryan and the complainant went there to look for it after having been advised by Derkum's neighbors that two men, said to be Friend and Hemmaway, had removed the dory from the beach.

As soon as Hemmaway returns to the beach he will be arrested on a grand larceny charge, also, officers said.

ADVERTISEMENTS WIN
CITIZENS FOR STATE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—One advertisement recently placed in California newspapers by the Southern Pacific resulted in the company obtaining the names of 7000 persons living in eastern states as prospective California settlers.

This was revealed today by F. S. McGinnis, general passenger agent of the company at Los Angeles, as he checked over the long list of persons, most of them heads of families, who desire to come to California.

The advertisement was the first of a series prepared by the Southern Pacific for daily and weekly newspapers throughout the state. It drew attention to the special opportunities California offers settlers of all kinds, both from the agricultural and industrial standpoint.

In co-operation with chambers of commerce, the All-Year club of Southern California, Californians incorporated and similar organizations, the Southern Pacific is making every effort to bring settlers to the Pacific coast.

"The result from this one advertisement affords ample justification of the policy of the Southern Pacific in advertising extensively in the newspapers to increase our business and to build up the territory served by us," Mr. McGinnis said.

Frederic T. Bioletti, viticultural expert, who has been staying at St. Ann's Inn, was to give the second of the grape culture demonstrations, under direction of the Orange county farm bureau and the Agricultural Extension Service, at the William Ritter place at El Toro, today.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Myers and two small daughters from Colby, Kan., have leased the residence property of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. White at 1008 North Parion street and will make their home here. The family was on its way to Portland, Ore., but after stopping at the local auto camp several days, decided to settle in this city. Mrs. Myers' mother will leave her home in Oregon and join them here soon. Mr. and Mrs. White have purchased the residence of W. M. Brown at 2035 Bush street and will make that their future home.

Three building permits issued here today were called for construction valued at $8,230, making 76 permits for the month and year valued at $175,353, according to the records of W. S. Decker, building inspector.

Visitors to St. Ann's Inn become "repeaters," according to G. A. Schweiger, manager, who drew attention to names of parties appearing on the register today. "Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Carter of Rochester have returned to the Inn," he said. "They were gone but a few days before returning. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tappan of Mansfield, O., also are staying here for the second time this season. Guests tell me that they return to St. Ann's Inn because this is the only hotel of its kind in Southern California. They leave here with regrets and return with pleasure."

H. E. Wehlberg, farm advisor of Orange county, and W. M. Cory, assistant farm advisor, today were expected to start on their return to Santa Ana from Berkeley where they have been attending the farm advisor's conference this week. Programs of the Agricultural Extension Service in co-operation with the various county farm bureaus were outlined by the conference, which ended today, it was reported.

Douglas Fairbanks, it was learned here today, will be present at Fullerton today. Friday next Orange county boy scouts gather there for their annual scout council and court of honor. Awards earned by scouts during the year will be made at that time.

Many business matters of interest combined with social features and a carefully planned supper menu will offer inducement to members of the Men's club of the Baptist church Tuesday evening, it was stated today. Supper will be served at 8:30 o'clock with a program to follow.

Local junior college students who are constructing the telescope for use in their astronomy course were interested today in the announcement that W. P. Hoge, engineer for the 60-inch telescope on Mount Wilson, will come to Santa Ana Monday to help with the completion of the students' telescope. He will bring parts to help with the construction, it was stated.

Boy problems were scheduled to be discussed at a conference this afternoon and tomorrow at Pacific Palisades, Santa Monica, of boy workers and leaders of Y. M. C. A. work in Southern California. The occasion for the conference is the visit to the coast of C. P. Robinson, of New York, a member of the International Y. M. C. A. committee. Ralph C. Cole and F. M. Duckles, of the state "Y" staff, also will be present. A number of Orange county men, including George Cheesum, county secretary; T. P. McKee, Santa Ana community secretary, and James Anderson and Carson Smith, leaders; C. E. Morrow, secretary at Orange, and J. Raitt, secretary at Fullerton, left for the Palisades today.

Sift Asserted Gas Robbery

FELONY CHARGE NEAR AS PIPE HELD TAPPED

Disclosing an unusual asserted theft, in which illuminating gas was said to have been stolen by the proprietor of a store at Orange, District Manager J. C. Hayden of the Southern Counties Gas company, here, today was securing data upon which to base felony complaints.

The storekeeper, according to Hayden, tapped a main pipe passing his store, and consumed a quantity of the gas without the knowledge of the company.

Met a Reader Puzled. It was only when a meter reader, puzzled because he had no orders to read a meter in the store, in which he presumed that gas was being used, investigated, that the asserted scheme was disclosed.

The main pipe ran alongside the building, but had not been used by the company recently, Hayden declared. The storekeeper, he said, tapped the pipe with a tube leading to gas appliances in his building, failing to notify the company. By this means no record was kept of the fuel used—in fact, the company had no knowledge of its consumption, according to the manager.

Hayden was in conference with Deputy District Attorney C. N. Mozely today, regarding the institution of criminal action against the asserted offending storekeeper.

The charges which the manager expects formally to prefer early Monday, will probably accuse the man of a felony, since the laws provide against tampering with appliances of a public utilities corporation.

The amount of gas asserted to have been stolen in this manner cannot be computed, Hayden said. The situation has existed for at least two weeks, it was declared.

Love Quest Girl Still Determined to End Her Life, Claim

Still determined to commit suicide the moment she is released from the county hospital, Mrs. Maybelle Shreve Butler, 20, bride of a month, today continued to be held by authorities there pending reply from a telegram which she sent to a Los Angeles man.

The man to whom the telegram was directed, is the one who left the girl, and caused her to become despondent, she says. Authorities were undecided what to do in case no reply should ever be received, as the girl says there are no relatives who would care for her.

She was taken into custody by City Marshal Jack Tinsley of Huntington Beach after, it was declared, she had drunk three bottles of poison, and was about to attempt to drown herself in the ocean.

MRS. HUMMEL, DIRECTOR OF MUSIC.

William Jennings Byran's Weekly Bible Talk

Our Talk today deals with the Prodigal Son, the most beautiful story ever written.

It is full of tenderness, it teaches a wonderful lesson of God's love, and it fits into nearly every human life.

Few, fortunately, carry their rebellion to the extreme that this son did, but at a certain period during the transition from youth to maturity, when independence is taking the place of dependence, the spirit of revolt is apt to manifest itself against even the most considerate of parents.

The child cannot always act under direction; in the course of nature it must at some time assume responsibility for its course and decide for itself what it will do. This resolve to decide is the turning point of which self-assertion is the outward evidence.

It is at this time that the child is apt to have an exaggerated idea of its intelligence; it thinks it knows more than it ever does know. The pendulum usually swings too far and may not quickly return.

This is the age when the child really needs counsel and advice more than it does either just before or just afterward; hence, the importance of spiritual supervision at this critical time, usually covered by the student life if the education is completed.

The Spirit of Adventure. The father in the story had two sons. The older one had crossed this stormy strip of life's sea in safety, but the younger one was possessed of the spirit of adventure.

The father's authority was irksome to him; the parental yoke was galling. The text does not tell us at what hour in the day the son asked for his portion, but it is safe to guess that it was early in the forenoon of the day when he reached his majority.

The father, no longer able to force his guardianship upon the wayward lad, divided his substance and gave to the young man that which was his according to the law of that day.

His plans were doubtless made in advance, for "not many days after the younger son gathered all together and took his journey into a far country." That "he wasted his substance with riotous living" suggests that he had decided on having "a good time," as such are in the habit of calling it, before he left home. Probably he sought a "far country" that he might be more free to follow his bent.

Money Companions. The text does not tell us about his companions; it is not necessary that information should be given on this subject.

In every country there are those who know by instinct when a spendthrift comes into possession of an inheritance; they are constant companions while the money lasts, and their instinct detects as surely the day when the money is gone.

When this young man had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that country and he began to want. If he had made a wise use of his money, he might have passed through even a mighty famine unharmed, but those who waste their substance with riotous living are the ones who suffer first when hard times come.

The prodigal son was not in position to seek the best places; his dissipated habits had not only wasted his money but diminished his capacity for work. He had to take anything that was offered and the feeding of swine—the most menial labor of that day—fell to his lot. His dream of independence came to an end—"he would fain have filled

The Parable of the Prodigal Son—Text of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan.
(Luke 15:11-24.)

And he said, A certain man had two sons: And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto him his living.

And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger?

I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee.

And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

And he arose, and came to this father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet:

And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry:

For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

ed his belly with the husks that the swine did eat." His swagger was gone; his pride was humbled; the priceless hour of repentance was at hand.

A Valuable Moment. All moments are of equal length, as time is ticked by the clock, but moments may differ infinitely in value. The moment in which "he came to himself" was more valuable to him than all the days that he spent in riotous living.

And how blessed it is that it takes no longer to turn to the right than to the left.

There was a moment—a fatal moment—in his youth when he decided to enter upon a career of physical enjoyment, just as there is a moment in the life of a thief when he decides to steal, and a moment in the life of a murderer when he decides to kill, but the moment in which one decides to do right is no longer than the moment in which one decides to do wrong.

Years may be spent in coming up to the moment of decision. The thief may be very deliberate in the contemplation of wrongdoing; he may count the money over and over again and consider the possibilities of capture and punishment. The murderer may cherish revenge for years and devise ways of escape, but the decision requires only an instant.

Eight Pregnant Words. And so with the prodigal son. His thoughts turned back to his father's house—"How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish here with hunger." The comforts of home impressed him more as they passed before him in retrospect than they did when they were in his actual possession.

We do not know how long the memory of better days had chided him before his pride broke down. Many a young man has come to himself as he has recalled parenthood, the counsel of a father, the prayers of a mother, or the songs of the Sunday school.

There are enough cases to convince us that no good influences thrown about a child are ever hopelessly lost. Words, seemingly unheard when spoken, may echo in after years, the echo drowns out all other sounds.

"I will arise and go to my father. Eight words only—and yet they meant more to this young man than all the thick-tongued hilarity of his boon companions. They meant life because they his father had earned. But he repents; he is born again. He returns to his father's house and is welcome. His sins are forgiven and we leave him amid the congratulations of friends, his father exclaiming in joy, "This my son was dead, and is alive again."

A Touch of Sadness. Only the elder brother refuses to share in the rejoicing. Why was this touch of sadness introduced at the very end of the story? In order to make it natural.

How can a brother know a father's love. His heart had never been wrung by a child's waywardness. He saw a wild boy bring sorrow upon a parent, and he had had to blush for a brother's sins, and possibly the father had accepted the elder son's service and devotion as a matter of course, without thinking to reward him with an occasional knd.

The father, having passed beyond the age of meriment, might have been at fault in not considering the social side of the elder son's life, but nothing that the father could have done could have opened the elder son's understanding to the father's delight when the prodigal returned.

And why is the story told? To emphasize the Heavenly Father's love of every child and to give assurance of the Father's delight when a child returns to the fold.

The story of the Prodigal Son is the third of three illustrations by Jesus recorded by Luke in one chapter—the fifteenth—all given to show God's attitude toward repentance and his willingness to pardon.

The Lost Sheep. The first is the parable of the lost sheep—one out of one hundred. As the owner calls together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them: "Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost," so, "likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

In the second illustration a woman, having ten pieces of silver, lost one. When, after diligent search, she found it she called in her friends and neighbors, saying, "Rejoice with me! for I have found the piece which I had lost," and the moral, "likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

Then follows the story of the Prodigal Son, which furnishes the climax. First, a sheep, then a coin and, last, a human soul. The moral of the Prodigal Son is so plain that it was not necessary to conclude the story as Christ concluded the story of the sheep and of the coin.

Innumerable Chances. The impression made by this lesson will linger with us. No one will gather from it the thought that repentance can justify the sin that precedes it. The rewards of a virtuous life are continuous.

The elder son might well have weighed them against the meriment of a home-coming banquet. The Prodigal would have gladly have exchanged the joy of the feast for forgetfulness of his evil days and of the husks.

The real joy that all can derive from the story of the prodigal son is that God's love is so infinite that even man's sin cannot exhaust it. Christ's pardon is offered to all.

Christianity has been called the gospel of the second chance. It is more than that. It is the gospel of innumerable chances if the heart is truly repentant.

At Pretty Ceremony
In Bride's Home

"What a lovely bride," was the undercurrent of comment last night at a particularly pretty wedding, when Miss Violet Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Cook, 314 South Broadway, became the bride of Donald Hilliard, by the Rev. J. G. Kennedy reading the solemn marriage service.

Friends and relatives of the young people gathered at the Cook home for the ceremony at 8 o'clock, and were met at the door by the bride's brother, Daniel Cook. Just preceding the ceremony, with Miss Donna Horton, of Los Angeles, at the piano, Miss Holly Lash sang Cadman's "At Dawning," with a violin obligato, played by Miss Glenna Jean Hill. Then as the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus sounded, Dr. Kennedy took his place at the archway separating the living-room and music room. There masses of smilax interspersed with narcissus and pink carnations, formed a floral bower, banked with palms.

Mr. Hilliard accompanied by his uncle and best man, Warren Hilliard, there awaiting the coming of the bride who entered on the arm of her father and was preceded by her honor maid, Miss Mildred Cook. Miss Mildred Cook was charming in a frock of gray and rose changeable taffeta worn with white slippers. She carried an arm cluster of pink roses tied with tulle.

The bride, as she entered in her girlish loveliness, was in a similar gown of rose and silver, the brief sleeves of which were tiny puffs of silver lace. Against the dark waves of her hair lay a wreath of silver leaves, and little brocade silver slippers with rosestrich feathers outlining the silver buckles, completed the charming costume. Her flowers were bride's roses in shower effect with lilies of the valley.

Mr. Cook gave his daughter in marriage and following the words, which made the youthful pair husband and wife, the guests remained for the reception.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard departed on a motor honeymoon to be followed by their occupancy of a lovely new bungalow home at 1014 West Myrtle street which is all in readiness for their return.

Since her graduation from high school, Miss Cook had been employed at the California Crate company. Mr. Hilliard was at the University of California, Southern branch, last year and this year has been a member of the county surveyor's force.

Among those witnessing the wedding here were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Cook, her two brothers, Frank Cook and Daniel Cook and her sister, Miss Mildred Cook, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hilliard, grandparents of the groom; his uncle, Warren Hilliard; Mr. and Mrs. Verne Hilliard of Nuevo; Mr. and Mrs. E. Lund, Mr. and Mrs. A. Adorn Tables for Bridge Luncheon

A pleasant informality prevailed at a small bridge luncheon with which Mrs. Howard Timmons yesterday entertained a few friends at her home, 637 North Van Ness street.

Pink and lavender sweet peas centered the two tables where a delectable luncheon was enjoyed before the afternoon of cards. At the close of the afternoon, Mrs. J. I. Clark was presented with a potted cyclamen for her expert playing while to Miss Katherine Edwards was given consolation for low score in a box of attractive correspondence cards.

Mrs. Timmons was assisted during the afternoon by Mrs. John Jacobs Jr. and Mrs. George Kenneth Scovel.

Orange Woman's Club

Members of the Orange Woman's club are anticipating the meeting at their club room on North Glas-sell street, Orange, Monday afternoon at 2:30, when they will have the pleasure of hearing a song recital presented by Melba French Barr of Los Angeles, accompanied by Lorna Gregg.

Mrs. Barr, a soprano soloist has won high praise wherever she has appeared.

Household Economics

With "Santa Ana Industries" as the theme of the afternoon, members of the second section Household Economics listened to many interesting matters pertaining to our city at Thursday's meeting of the section.

Mrs. Roy Russell, Mrs. M. A. Patton and Mrs. Fred Rowland were entertaining hostesses and served a delicious noon luncheon at the home of Mrs. Russell on North Broadway.

In the afternoon each responded to roll call with a brief item of Santa Ana history and then Mr. Lynn Shaw was introduced as speaker.

His illuminating talk on the growth and development of the city, with her resources, achievements and promises was most enlightening as were his statements in speaking of the feasibility of an Orange county harbor. The program was given under the direction of Mrs. H. J. Selway, section leader.

Mrs. Roscoe Griffith, a new-comer from Tulsa, Oklahoma; Mrs. Fred Krueger, recently from Chicago, and Mrs. Bertha Colvin, a former section member, were welcomed as guests, while members present in addition to the three hostesses were Mesdames Fred Cole, Roy Hall, Bruce Monroe, Emrys D. White, Frederick Eley, J. C. Lamb, Clyde Walker, Marshall Keeler, L. M. Forcey, C. D. Brown, A. G. Flagg, Nat H. Neff, Elliott Rowland, Elmer Burns, R. B. Newcom and H. J. Selway.

"DANGEROUS AGE" STAR WEARS BEAUTY GOWN.

Ruth Clifford, beautiful and clever young star in "The Dangerous Age," which comes to the Yost theater for three days beginning January 14, wears a Poiret gown that will be a delight to feminine eyes. Of gray Mouglow satin, the frock falls in straight lines from the shoulders to the ankles, indicative of the trend of the smartest of Fall fashions. Handmade ornaments of black silk, terminating in heavy fringe that touches the ground, define the waistline.

A unique note is the cape which fastens to the long, tight sleeves with flat black buttons, and which is faced with black Mouglow, applied with futuristic medallions. A simple roll collar and cuffs of black complete this very unusual creation. With this gown Miss Clifford wears a large black satin hat turned up sharply in front and trimmed with a single jet ornament, and carries a walking stick of black and ivory.

Varied Festivities
Follow Celebration
Of Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Beswick, 1658 East Fourth street, were enjoyably surprised recently by a group of relatives and friends who came to remind them of their wedding day thirty-six years ago.

The affair was arranged by the six daughters of the honored pair and resulted in a happy evening of games and music. Mr. and Mrs. Beswick received many handsome gifts and to add to the pleasure of the evening was the towering bride's cake prepared by the daughters and served with ice cream.

Enjoying the pleasant celebration were the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Beswick, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown, daughters Elizabeth and Harriet and son Virgil of Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Beswick, Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. George Graham and daughter Marcia, Fort Collins, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ward, Anaheim; Mr. and Mrs. H. Jessup and daughters Catherine and Dorothy, Irvine; Mr. E. E. Stricker, Orange; Ethel Blumenthal, San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stillings and sons Boyd and Wayne, Delphia Madison, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cramer all of Santa Ana.

With so many out-of-town guests gathered for the anniversary, other happy social affairs have marked the past few days. Among these was a trip to Laguna with which Mr. and Mrs. Beswick entertained their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. George Graham and Miss Marcia Graham with Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Cramer.

Motoring to "Our Village" they enjoyed the day on the beach, later returning to the Beswick home where they were joined by Mrs. Blumthal for a lobster supper. The Grahams are wintering at Long Beach but have been guests in the Beswick home for several days.

Honored Guest Given Lovely Watch

Arranged to honor Mrs. J. G. Kennedy who with the Rev. Mr. Kennedy will soon depart from the parsonage of the United Presbyterian church for their new field in Los Angeles, was a delightful tea given recently at the home of Mrs. W. W. Hoy, 1225 French street.

All the women of the congregation were directly concerned in the plans and many guests were greeted by the receiving line composed of Mrs. Hoy, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. John McFadden, Mrs. William Smart and Miss Minnie Cowan.

The spacious living room of the Hoy home was attractive with masses of sweet peas, heather and smilax arranged in artistic brown baskets, while in the diningroom where Mrs. Belle Marshall and Mrs. John McFadden presided at the tea table, a profusion of roses added brilliancy to the trailing sprays of smilax used in decorative effect.

Miss Mary Henderson sang a charming group of songs while Miss Margaret Finley gave an entertaining pianologue with her mother, Mrs. Albert Finley at the piano. A humorously faithful representation of a young girl washing dishes was cleverly presented by Miss Evelyn Walker.

The surprise feature of the afternoon came when Mrs. William Smart, president of the missionary society, upon behalf of all the women of the church, presented Mrs. Kennedy with a handsome gold wrist watch. Almost overwhelmed, Mrs. Kennedy recovered sufficiently to make a gracious little speech of acceptance.

There were nearly a hundred guests present.

Personals

Mrs. Annie M. Keizer, a former resident of this city, but now of Los Angeles, has been greeting many old friends during a pleasant visit of several days with Mrs. E. R. Curtis, 222 South Main street.

Mrs. W. D. Chappuis will leave tomorrow for Bakersfield. Called east by the sad news of the sudden death of her father, Mrs. S. J. Warren, 819 South Broadway, yesterday left for Leon, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morse of Clinton, Illinois, arrived in Santa Ana this week to spend the winter. They are visiting their cousins, S. P. Robb and wife at 606 East First street at present and later will visit other parts of the homeland, to return to Illinois after the cold weather is over in the East.

Santa Barbara Wedding
Interest Friends
Of Happy Couple

A telegram, received yesterday from Santa Barbara, stated that Mrs. Erlka Hinze Vermeulen and Mr. William Warren Bartlett were married at noon, January 11, in the First Baptist church at Santa Barbara, by the Rev. Mr. Catherwood.

Mrs. Vermeulen is the daughter of Mrs. Aline Hinze, of 701 South Ross street, and the late H. W. Hinze, who was the founder and builder of the Southern California Sugar company.

Mrs. Vermeulen, at one time owned the Corner Drug store at Fullerton, also the Anaheim Pharmacy at Anaheim, and had been for the last two years connected with the White Cross Drug company of this city. She has many friends and is well liked in business circles.

Mr. Bartlett is a promising young business man of Anaheim and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bartlett, of 200 Claudia street, Anaheim.

After February 1, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett will be at home to their many friends at 715 Zeyn street, Anaheim, where the bridegroom has a pleasant home all in readiness for his bride. At present the happy pair are enjoying a motor honeymoon trip to San Francisco and other northern points of interest.

Wedding Anniversary
Yields Surprise

Motoring into Los Angeles, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Clapp last night attended the pearl wedding anniversary of Dr. Johnston's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnston, held at their home on West Fifty-ninth street.

Over 100 invitations had been issued to friends and relatives to celebrate the couple's wedding of thirty years ago and a happy evening resulted with many handsome gifts showered on the "bride and groom." During the evening, to the complete surprise of the assembled guests, a second bride and groom appeared to "share honors with the celebrants. For a nephew of Dr. Johnston chose the same wedding date and all had the pleasure of seeing the pretty ceremony performed.

Floral decorations for the double wedding event were very beautiful and elaborate refreshments were served at a late hour by caterers of the city.

Delphian Society

The Beta class of the Delphian society will meet with Mrs. A. M. Gardner, 323 East Washington street, Friday, January 19, at 9 a. m., instituting the departure from former customs and the new series of bi-monthly meetings which will continue in the future.

Birthday Dinner Gives
Happy Celebration
To Little Maid

On January 5, 1923, little Miss Dorothy Thorpe, 1354 Grand avenue attained the age of seven years and in celebration of the event was honored with a birthday dinner by her aunt, Mrs. L. L. Stevens.

Two beautiful birthday cakes graced the table, each one bearing the magic number of candles. In blowing these out, the little maid had the enthusiastic assistance of her small cousin, Donald Stevens.

Miss Dorothy is attending the new John Muir school on East Fourth street, and after her return from school, she had a happy time with many pretty gifts and in company with those gathered for her dinner party.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stevens, Miss Carmen Stevens, Mr. Springston, Master Donald Stevens and the small honoree, Miss Dorothy Thorp and her mother, Mrs. Clara Thorp.

Benefit Association

With Mrs. Docia Jasper as installing officer and Mrs. Florence Somerville as lady of ceremonies, an interesting installation of officers of the Woman's Benefit association of the Macabees was held yesterday at the M. W. A. hall.

Those installed were Mesdames Margaret Lee, commander; Hattie Peters, lieutenant commander; Helene Galbraith, past commander; Emily Marcher, chaplain; May Curtis, record keeper; Margaret Culver, collector; Margaret Goepfer, lady-at-arms; Sarah Woods, sergeant; Cora Matthews, sentinel; Sue Spencer, picket; Etta Hall Ericks, musician; Docia Jasper, color bearer no. 1; Florence Somerville, color bearer no. 2.

Following the installation was a business and social meeting during which plans were discussed for an afternoon tea to be given Thursday, January 25, at the home of Mrs. E. R. Curtis, 222 South Main street.

The four-cylinder Model 43-A was brought out in anticipation of the return to normal conditions and the consequent need for good, sturdy, economical motor cars of extremely reasonable cost. Its price was based on material and labor costs that could not possibly become effective for months. The demand created by this sensational value brought about so great a volume of production that notable reductions in price were made possible. The eight-cylinder Model 47, following closely after the Model 43-A, is duplicating the four-cylinder's success. Largely for the same reasons.

This newest Oldsmobile is distinctly in a class by itself. For it is by far the most compact (and moderately priced) high-powered, eight-cylinder car built. It develops 63 horse power, has a speed range of 1 to 70 miles per hour and is in every respect the peer of many cars of much higher price.

"THE GOLD DIGGERS"

Comedy Which Played Two Years in Gotham Coming to Yost Thursday

Avery Hopwood's most successful comedy, "The Gold Diggers" under the direction of David Belasco, will be presented at the Yost Theater next Thursday night, Jan. 18.

Many local playgoers have waited long for the coming of this attraction, which for three seasons has been written about with enthusiastic favor by the critics of New York, Chicago and Boston. So prosperous were the runs in those three cities that a road tour could not be undertaken, and rather than send out a number two company Mr. Belasco preferred to postpone the presentation of the play in other cities until one company appearing in the comedy should be free to make the transcontinental tour.

This story of "The Gold Diggers" has to do with a phase of Metropolitan life that is alluring to everyone and yet is actually known to very few save those who are themselves a part of it. This life which Hopwood has so brilliantly and humorously pictured is that of the typical New York chorus girl, who when not appearing publicly in her professional capacity, addresses herself to the business of adroitly wheeling money from her admirers and spending the same with a free and lavish hand. The best and the worst traits of these gay and easy going characters are revealed strikingly and with scintillating wit by the author, and for all of its whimsicality the picture of life that he presents is an amazingly accurate one.

A scene from "The Gold Diggers," Avery Hopwood's famous comedy which comes to the Yost stage Thursday night.

DWAN TELLS OF "ROBIN HOOD" FILM DIFFICULTIES

When Douglas Fairbanks began his great new production, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which is coming to the Temple theater Monday for a week's engagement, the first scene shot was an interior, and Paul Dickey, playing Sir Guy of Gisbourne, the villain, killed a man nine times. It all happened in Richard Coeur de Lion's tent, on the road to the Holy Land with the Third Crusade.

This tent was an "all-drape set," combines the principles brought out by Gordon Craig in England, Max Reinhardt in Berlin and Robert Jones in this country. In spite of the fact that this set was forty feet deep, forty feet wide and twenty-four feet high, it was put up in two hours.

"In starting this production," said Allan Dwan, who directed Fairbanks in this feature, "we feel much as we did when we went to the Grand Canyon several years ago to make scenes for 'The Modern Musketeer.' We didn't undertake to photograph the canyon at once—its magnitude appalled us. It was so vast, so big. So we played around the corals for the first few days, photographing scenes featuring the horses and mules. Finally we got up courage enough to take a crack at the canyon."

"That's the way it was in starting on this new spectacle. At first we thought we would crash right into one of the big scenes showing a thousand knights in armor lined up for a tournament. But this undertaking was so big that it staggered us. So instead we decided to photograph the scene in Richard's tent, which we figured would give us courage enough to try one of the big out-door shots showing the resplendent knights with their plumed helmets and flashing spears."

L. A. FIRM GETS SEWER PLANT CONTRACT

The Water Works Supply company, Los Angeles, today held the contract for supplying the equipment needed for the treatment plant for the joint outfall sewer system being constructed by the cities of Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim and Fullerton, following award of the contract at a joint meeting of the councils held here last night.

At the same time the councils directed the city engineers to prepare plans and specifications for the building which will house the equipment. Plans are to be prepared for two classes of construction, brick and concrete.

The contract for equipment was awarded on a bid of $39,987. It was estimated that the building would cost $10,000.

Twenty Are Present

Present last night were Councilmen J. G. Mitchell, W. A. Greenleaf, J. W. Tubbs, C. H. Chapman, Santa Ana; G. J. Stock, Charles Mann, Howard E. Gates, Anaheim; W. F. Coulter, W. A. Moore, L. P. Drake, Roy Davis, Fullerton; O. E. Guenther, Thomas Walton, G. W. Whitsell, Orange; Engineers W. G. Knox, of Santa Ana, W. C. Record, of Fullerton, C. C. Bonebrake, of Orange and O. E. Steward, of Anaheim; Attorneys Clyde Bishop, of Santa Ana, and Hans Weisel, of Anaheim.

The city clerk of Santa Ana, also was authorized to advertise for bids for construction of the 2200 feet of the main joint outfall sewer at the ocean end of the system.

The local council at an adjourned meeting here last night instructed W. S. Decker, building inspector, strictly to enforce that section of the city building ordinance prohibiting the use of more than half of a sidewalk and one-fourth of a street for storing materials for buildings under construction.

Sign Revised Agreement

This action followed the reading of a communication from the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, in which attention was called to the custom here of blocking sidewalks.

A resolution was passed authorizing the mayor and clerk to sign a revised agreement between Santa Ana, Anaheim, Orange and Fullerton for construction of the joint outfall.

On advice of Special City Counsel Clyde Bishop, action of the city council last Monday night in directing re-assessment of costs in a district organized for the installation of sewers on Spurgeon street was rescinded. Notice will be given of a hearing on an appeal from the original assessment.

WOMAN'S PARTY PLANS NATIONWIDE CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A nation wide campaign, for equal rights for women, supervised by leaders of the National Woman's party has been inaugurated by that organization. It is announced here and will soon swing into motion in 41 states. Equal rights bills have been drafted. It was said today, for introduction at sessions of the state legislative bodies this year.

States in which the woman's party leaders will center their efforts included: Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

CAL. DECEMBER MOTOR SALES ARE SECOND

than a year ago were registered, the present being 112.

Predict Banner Year.

If the automobile industry can be used as a barometer on all other lines of endeavor, neither Northern or Southern California merchants should be doing any crepe-hanging this year, for, from all indications, 1923 will even surpass the most remarkable record that the year 1922 reached in the state of California, it was stated.

Southern California has to its credit a 92 per cent increase, or 4899 more sales in December of 1922 over the same month a year ago, these figures being the total of both passenger cars and trucks. Taking the passenger cars separately, 4691 were registered in December a year ago as against 9243 last month, 4552 equaling the 97 per cent gain.

In the division between the north and south, the truck industry in Southern California shows a smaller per cent gain. A count on the records in this instance shows a comparison of 955 sales made as against 608 a year ago, leaving the net increase of 57 per cent, which is an equal of 347.

DRESS AND MORALS OF WOMEN PLAYED

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 12.—

The dress and morals of the women of today were censured by Mrs. Grant Forsythe, in the president's address at the annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union.

"We deplore many of the new customs and habits that have crept into women's lives," she said. "The two free manner and careless, unmodest dress, the inelegant, slangy language, the cigarette smoking and wine drinking, the betting and gambling that are as meat and drink to many, if not the majority of girls—all are signs of the times. We dare not leave them unchallenged. Some of the evils could be rectified by legislation; some only by example and teaching. Women's place still begins in the home, and there we must look for the remedy."

Mrs. Forsythe said that she looked forward to the time when the legislature would give the people an opportunity of expressing their opinion on the liquor question, "and when our intelligent men and women would study the question of prohibition with unbiased minds."

The convention voted to ask the federal government to introduce legislation in Australia which would give married women the right to retain their British nationality on marriage with an alien. Other recommendations urged that Australian representatives at the imperial conference should endeavor to have legislation of this kind made uniform throughout the empire.

The secretary said that many women did not realize that if they married a foreigner they adopted the nationality of the husband and would have no claim upon an English consul abroad in the event of trouble.

STABLE PRICES ON TIRE IS PROMISED

Local motorists were interested in announcement today by the Western Auto Supply company that their Western Giant Cord and other tires would not be increased in price, even in the face of almost a universal jump in the entire standard tire price field.

The information from the offices of the company is to the effect that they have been able to maintain their low price mark only because arrangements have been previously made for the building of more than a million dollars' worth of tires by Eastern tire factories for delivery to the "Western Auto" stores during the early months of 1923.

"Maintaining the company's saving and service policy toward its customers, the public will be able to purchase tires at the Western Auto store for a limited time at the old low prices," J. W. Campbell, local manager, said. "This includes Pharis cord and fabric tires, Nebraska fabric tires, and the Western Giant cord and fabric tires."

ENCLOSURE FOR CARS HANDLED BY S. A. MAN

H. L. Copson, former owner of the Owl Taxi company of this city, is displaying at 411 West Fourth street a new accessory for open model automobiles in the form of a complete glass enclosure.

This device was invented by Leonard Clark, formerly of Santa Ana, who had sold the manufacturing rights to Copson.

"This automobile enclosure, known as 'Clark's Closure,' is an entirely new idea and as far as I know is the only device which actually encloses an open car completely," Copson said. "This is accomplished by swinging plate glass panels in combination with and attached to a center framed glass panel which in turn rigidly is fixed to and parallel with the top of the body of the car. Each swinging panel acts independently of the doors and is in no way attached to the top, permitting the latter to be raised or lowered without interference."

"The device appeals to the motorist who desires the advantages of an open car combined with closed car comfort."

"That the new accessory has a large measure of merit is evidenced by the fact that in two weeks we have received at least thirty orders."

BIG DIVIDENDS OF FIRMS QUESTIONED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Ascribing recent stock dividend declarations by large corporations to a desire to evade taxation, Senator Trammel, Democrat of Florida, declared in the senate that "such evasion is indefensible."

"If we are, so hedged about by the constitutional provisions as to permit any avenue of escape in the matter of the taxation to large and rich corporations," declared Senator Trammel, "then it is about time we were amending the constitution to close that way of escape."

Senator Trammel based his comment on a provision in the pending deficiency bill appropriating 42 million dollars for tax refunds, largely growing out of the United States supreme court's decision declaring stock dividends non-taxable.

EIGHT HELD FOR ARSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Eight persons were indicted today for first degree arson upon evidence submitted by the district attorney's office in connection with the burning of a number of laundries. The names of the eight were withheld.

ASKS STATE AID.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Jan. 13.—State aid in building a highway between Bakersfield and Mojave to connect with the paved state highway at that place was urged here today by C. A. Barlow at a meeting of the East Bakersfield business men.

BIG SEED CATALOG READY FOR GROWERS

Morris & Snow Seed Company of Los Angeles Issues Big Annual Book.

The Morris & Snow Seed Company of Los Angeles, one of the oldest and largest seed houses in California, has just issued its 1923 catalog. The book contains a vast amount of valuable information to orchardists, ranchers, gardeners, and growers generally. The big book is really a manual because of the "Hints on Growing," which present valuable information on spraying, fumigating, fertilizing, and use of insecticides. It tells how and when to sow seeds and set out plants for best results, and explains the correct use of tools and implements. Notes on marketing, telling how, when, and where to buy and sell to advantage is another feature of the 1923 volume.

The big book contains 64 pages and has more than 150 illustrations. It is said to be the most complete book of its kind ever issued in the Southwest. The company announces that a copy of the book will be sent free to readers of this paper who write for it. The address of the Morris & Snow Seed Company is M-485 South Main Street, Los Angeles, California.—Adv.

VIOLINIST IS TO APPEAR HERE JANUARY 22

In Irene Stolofsky, violinist and feature artist of the musical company bearing her name, will be the next number of the entertainment course of the junior high school, to be given at the assembly room of the school January 22 at 8:15 p. m., it was announced today.

When Miss Stolofsky made her musical debut in her home city of Chicago she was greeted by enthusiastic praise from the reviewers, who called attention to her talent and to a careful preparation for the concert stage as well as to a sincere and unaffected manner which contributes to her pleasing platform presence.

She presents not only the great sonatas and concertos, but varies her program with many popular numbers. Associated with her is a popular baritone singer, George Imbrie, while Miss Magdalen Massman, as pianist, rounds out what was described as an excellent trio of musicians.

ELECTRICAL SERVICE AIM OF FIRM BARED

Complete electrical service under one roof is the feature of West Brothers, 209 North Main street, according to V. A. Barrow, manager.

"We are equipped to care for all electric repairs, including lighting, ignition, starter and battery work," said Barrow today.

"In addition we are local distributors for the Vesta battery, which embodies several features that are radically different from other storage batteries. The most important of these is the manner in which the plates are fastened. In the Vesta battery the plates are held by locking pieces at their four corners called 'isolators' and prevent short circuits through buckling, and materially increase the life of the battery. Free circulation of acid is maintained so that the tendency to overheat is reduced."

SCHOOL'S OLD BELL BOUGHT AS RELIC

As a relic and lest it go to a junkman, the old Washington school bell has been purchased by Mrs. A. J. Crookshank, it was learned today.

The bell had been advertised for sale by those who wrecked the old building to make room for the Y. M. C. A. building.

"It seemed to me that it would be too bad if the bell should happen to be taken away as junk," said Mrs. Crookshank. "For sentiment's sake—I taught in the building for three years—we decided to buy it. We don't know just what to do with it, but we will keep it and any time it can be put to any good use by the city, as a relic or otherwise, we will be glad to turn it over."

No small number of residents of the city had become interested in the fate of the bell, and the purchase by Mrs. Crookshank forestalled a number of incipient movements for getting together funds for buying it and holding the bell as a relic, just as Mrs. Crookshank has done. Horace Fine, W. A. Greenleaf, Mac O. Robbins, Miss Blanche McDowell, and T. E. Stephenson, who went to school to the call of the bell, and Dr. John Wehrly were among those who were planning to take up subscriptions to buy the bell.

Greenleaf said that his sister, Miss Sue Greenleaf, has at her home one of the old home-made desks used in the schoolhouse that once stood where the South Methodist church now stands, which she will turn over to the historical society when arrangements are made for receiving relics.

COSTUME NEEDS FOR MUSICAL PLAY TOLD

"They were 'dress rehearsing' 'The Bohemian Girl' at the high school auditorium last night."

A swarthy desperado bounded out on the stage—it appeared to be Robert Brown—and began to sing.

The chorus, as by magic, fell into a colorful background and took up the action and the music.

Tap, tap, tap, tap went the baton of Ellis Rhodes, director of the Orange County Choral union.

The music stopped. The chorus stopped. The kaleidoscope turned. What had been a picture of girls and men in an array, became a blur of color again.

The director spoke. "Are you Spanish dancers going to wear black stockings, or red to match your dresses?"

Watches Dress Coats.

And out on the stage came trooping a bonny group of Romany lads and lassies, evidently with a view to beginning to sway and prouette. But there was no dancing. Director Rhodes's main concern seemed to be to make a point of the dress coats being hanging.

The theme changed suddenly. "Maurice! Maurice Phillips!" and Maurice Phillips arose from his comfortable seat down in the orchestra pit and came forward to try the effect of a gray wig, a militant gray mustache and a suit of heavy white small-clothes.

And then came the call for tiny Ardmore Miles—a golden haired fairy in her little fur bordered frock, and for black-eyed Lilian Napier, a red-cheeked gypsy maid, whose gay little frock of vivid colors must hang just so.

Call Chorus Again.

The chorus was called again—this time to appear in brilliant colors of the gypsy folk, the men swaggering in jack-boots and velvet jackets with rakish, broad-brimmed hats, the women in brilliantly colored frocks with gay handkerchiefs over their heads and great golden hoops dangling from their ears.

"And still no singing!" those who witnessed this rehearsal asked Director Rhodes.

"No, I'm going to see how long it takes them to change from peasant to gypsy outfits and be on the stage, and then I'm going to let them go home," he replied.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Will Rogers delivered what he described as "a message of truth in advertising" before several hundred members of the Advertising club, at a luncheon in their clubhouse in New York city recently. He spoke of the club as "the Mother Lodge of Liars," and pleaded with the advertising men to "let a little truth creep into their copy."

"I don't know why you brought me here to talk to the Advertising club," he said, "unless it's that I tell lies on the stage myself. The only difference between my business and your business is that every gas, or lie, or joke I tell on the stage is fundamentally based on the truth. And that's where our business part—right there."

"Here's a pretty good account of a composite picture of every one in this room. You were born in the West or the Middle West. None of you were born in New York. Well, from birth on you played with other children, and you just couldn't tell the truth, not even to your own mother. You lied about everything. Finally you were pointed out as the biggest liar in the town, and you prided yourself on that account."

Traces Career of Ad Man

"You went as far as you could in your home town—you had reached the pinnacle of achievement, when suddenly, for some reason or other, a New York Sunday newspaper happened to find its way into your hands and you got to the advertisements. You began to feel discouraged. As a liar you were an amateur. You immediately made up your mind to come to New York—so you told the folks you were starting for California. You came here, got a job as an advertising man and worked your way into this ad men's club, which is the goal for every slick liar in the world. I am very proud to be here and address the Mother Lodge of Liars."

The only thing that prevented him from becoming an advertising writer, he said, was his grammar. His adjective vocabulary wasn't quite large enough. "Good" "grand" and "glorious" would come to his mind easily, but there he stopped. And to be a real advertising man, Rogers said he realized he would have to learn more descriptive words.

"You birds have members who write real estate advertising. That's a post-graduate course in lying. Every house they talk about is 'up-to-date' and in 'the most fashionable residential section.' People are so sick of that kind of stuff that if you dared tell the truth, and say some roofs leak and the owner is giving it up because he knows it's no good and wants a better house, you would get such a crowd of people to see it that you would need a traffic cop to handle them."

"What would happen if you fellows ever got down and told the truth? Did it ever happen to you to get the people you work for to improve the article they're selling with the money they are using to advertise with? Of course, that's a revolutionary idea. I'll never happen."

"Didn't Leave Europe Enough."

"Now this fellow Clemency, or however you pronounce it, is in this country. It's good he's got a nickname, so we know what to call him. It seems like old times to have someone over here from Europe with a message for us. He's a unique kind of speaker. He's here three weeks and no one knows yet what he wants. He says we left Europe too soon. I imagine he means we didn't leave Europe enough."

"I think I know what he came for. Did you look over his breakfast menu? Well, he came for eggs. It's good he's living with those rich people, the Gibsons and the Palmers; it would break a poor man to supply him with so many eggs when the hens ain't laying."

"New Yorkers, especially society, have a habit of imitating everything. It's all right for them to get up at four o'clock in the morning, when the Tiger gets up, but having onion soup is gonna make some of 'em stop. We've always considered the onion more of an odor than a delicacy, and now it's given national prominence."

"I really hope his propaganda is in regard to the last war and not drumming up trade for another. We can't go into another war yet; we're two bonuses behind, as it is. And I don't think there's much chance of our getting into the next one, because we're not represented at the peace conference that's going on now. We'd send some one over to it, but no American could ever find that place."

Turkish Wars and Betting Odds

"Turkey was sure unlucky last week. But the Turks don't care much about losing one war or winning one; it's just how they average up at the end of the season that they care about. Their wars are being listed on the sporting pages now and you can get odds on them."

"Greece set an example to the world when they shot their cabinet members last week. Of course, I don't advocate that kind of business here, but it ought to be a lesson to ours, anyhow. And in England they resigned recently. We never have any luck like that here. The more we cuss 'em out the longer they stay in."

"And we just read yesterday that the progressives in this country are trying to amend the constitution. They want the president elected by direct vote of the people, and they want him to take office on January 4 instead of March 4. It seems that the founders of the Constitution back in 1776, or some time around then, didn't have the right idea of how to run the country. If they get away with those amendments they'll start in next week on the Ten Commandments. They'll think there's room for improvement there, too."

El Toro at Tustin K. P.
S. A. Legion at Irvine.
El Modena at Garden Grove.

With Neal Raney and "Dutch" Heinrichs, teammates on the University of Southern California varsity, scheduled to oppose each other on the mound, the baseball teams of Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, and Irvine will clash at Irvine tomorrow afternoon in one of the feature tilts of the Orange County Harbor league season.

Heinrichs has allowed but two runs in his last thirty-two innings. Raney, twirling his first full game last Sunday, blanked Garden Grove with four scattered bingles.

If the Legion men can get to the big U. S. C. star and batter out a victory they stand a good chance to come through and nab the Spalding pennant. If Irvine wins that club will have one less opponent to worry about. The Harbor league clubs are now on their second round of the schedule and Irvine and the Legion teams will not meet again this season. In their first engagement Irvine trampled the ex-service players 12 to 0.

The Van Dien-Young company nine of Santa Ana will move bag and baggage to Newport for an afternoon's frolic with the rejuvenated club Charlie Way is handling. Newport skipped into the limelight last week by seizing its first fringes of the season from El Toro. The Van Dien-Youngs figure they will not allow that to happen tomorrow. At present Newport and the local team are tied in the per cent column, just a jump above the cellar position, now occupied by Garden Grove.

The El Toro-Tustin Knights of Pythias game will be played on the Tustin high school grounds, it was announced today. This will be the first tilt of the league on these grounds. A victory for either El Toro or Tustin tomorrow will put both teams right in the thick of the fight for the gonfalon.

Joe Sanford will take his El Modena team, ousted out of the lead last week, to Garden Grove for a melee with the Chill Growers.

FIGHT RESULTS

DENVER, Jan. 13.—Joe Berger, Chicago lightweight, won a fast ten round bout from Jack Doyle, Denver.

OMAHA, Jan. 13.—Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight, knocked out Harry Foley, Little Rock, in 42 seconds. Morris Schaefer, Omaha, was given a ten round decision over Warnie Smith, Tulsa.

BRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 13.—Charlie Connell of Cleveland, won an easy victory over Johnny Donnelly of Philadelphia, in their twelve round bout.

FRENCH CLASS TEAM WINS COURT MELEE FROM SPANISH CLAN

To decide their long-time basketball feud, the girl French class students of the Santa Ana junior college and the girl Spanish class students of the high school clashed on the Poly courts yesterday afternoon. The French class won, 36 to 13.

The game was well played throughout and attracted considerable attention on the local campus. The teams lined up as follows: Spanish class—Willie Dunn and Vada Freiburg, forwards; Della and Louisa Hampton, centers; Myrtle Meacham and Belle Martin, guards. French class—Ruth Langley and Wilma Plavan, forwards; Tessie Childers and Regina Devault, centers; Edith Plavan and Mable Harvey, guards.

FACULTY CONTROL OF SPORTS URGED

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Elimination of the evils of college athletics can only be gained through faculty control of all sports. Dean F. W. Nicholson of Wesleyan University, declared before the Association of American Colleges convention here.

Control of athletics either by the alumni or the student body is laughable," Nicholson asserted. "The worst system is that in which the students are the leaders. The undergraduate has no regard for anything but to produce a winning team. Professionalism, gambling and other vices thrive under student control, while academic standing becomes a matter of secondary importance.

"With the alumni the situation is slightly improved as the result of experience, but alumni after all are only former students and are inclined to see the students' view rather than that of the faculty."

DEMPSEY GETS OFFERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Tex Rickard has made a definite offer to Jack Dempsey to engage in two fights during the summer season against opponents that Rickard will select. Rickard would not name the terms or the opponents under consideration.

SAMUEL RALSTON OF INDIANA MENTIONED AS NEXT PRESIDENT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 13.—Indiana may furnish 1924 Democratic presidential candidate for nomination, according to gossip here preceding the Jackson day banquet, when persons prominent in the affairs of the Democratic party heard Samuel Ralston, United States senator elect from Indiana, in the principal address.

Mr. Ralston, has friends here, does not wish to be made a candidate for election this far in advance, but letters requesting nominations for the banquet contain the remarks that "it will be a pleasure to hear the next President of the United States" in his address.

POLY SUCCUMBS TO ORANGE COURT FIVE

Santa Ana Men Show Great Improvement; Fullerton Defeats Whittier

League Standing	W.	L.	Pct.
Fullerton	2	0	1.000
Orange	1	0	1.000
Whittier	1	1	.500
Anaheim	0	1	.000
Santa Ana	0	2	.000

Yesterday's Results
Orange, 26; Santa Ana, 11.
Fullerton, 32; Whittier 12.

Cochran Marvin Morrison's Santa Ana high school basketball team displayed a fifty per cent improvement in its game at Orange last night with H. M. Davis' aggregation but suffered its second victory in the Orange league title chase by the count of 26 to 11.

Santa Ana had little offensive strength and its basket shooting was erratic on the occasions it did have to score. But the local men showed a world of fight on defense and made the game interesting from the first to the final whistle. Another week and the Poly court squad will get into its stride. The team, apparently, lacks only experience at present. Nichols, the big Orange center, was the whole cheese in the encounter. He tossed five field baskets and made four throws after fouls had been called on Santa Ana players. These shots gave him a total of fourteen points.

Bill Luck was high point man for Santa Ana with eight digits to his credit. Verne Smith and "Beans" Golden scored the other Poly points.

During the first half Santa Ana was always within striking distance of the neighboring city five, the half closing with the score 9 to 3 in favor of Orange. During the last two quarters Morrison sent in about every player on his first string organization.

The teams lined up as follows:
S. A. (11) Pos. (26) Orange
Bowe F..... (4) Spencer
Smith (1) (2) Peck
Luck (8) F..... (2) Price
Natlund C..... (14) Crawford
Lacey C..... (14) Nichols
Linschard C..... (14) Strohschein
Middlebrook G..... M. Thompson
Wursten, McClain Johnson
Golden (2) G..... Murphy

Umpire—Ray Walker.

FULLERTON ROMPS ON POET BASKETERS

Fullerton annexed its second consecutive victory in the Orange league, division one, by trimming Whittier high school's basketball team at Whittier yesterday afternoon, 32 to 12. Glenn Lewis' men were out in front all the way and their defense was so good that the Poets rarely got in position to score. The lineups:

Fullerton (32) Whittier (12)
Hochhaich (4) F..... McCaslin
Weeks (2) F..... (3) Moffitt
Arruoz (12) C..... Bigbee
Kramer (6) G..... (6) Barmore
Shipke (8) G..... Landreth
Substitutions for Fullerton—Carpenter for Kramer and Gregory for Partridge.
Substitutions for Whittier—Partridge for Barmore, Horton (2) for Partridge and Phelan for Landreth.

Yesterday's Results

San Juan Capistrano, 33; Garden Grove, 13.
Huntington Beach, 29; Tustin, 14.

The four basketball teams in division two of the Orange league got under way yesterday in their first official engagements of the season. San Juan Capistrano bumped off the Garden Grove quintet and Ray Walker's Huntington Beach five stopped Earl Murray's Tustin crew. The line-up of the first game:

BULLSEYES of BASEBALL

NO. 9—THE FREAKIEST BASERUNNING I EVER SAW.

Freak plays always create discussion. Baseball abounds in such situations.

To Catcher Eddie Ainsmith goes the credit of pulling the freakiest bit of baserunning I have ever seen.

Ainsmith, who is now catching for the St. Louis club of the National League, was a member of the Washington team when he put over his bit of baserunning extraordinaire.

Philadelphia was playing at Washington, and had the home team badly beaten. Chief Bender was doing the pitching for the Athletics.

When Ainsmith singled in the ninth after two were out, the score was something like 13 to 2 in favor of the Athletics.

On the first ball pitched Ainsmith stole second without any opposition. On the second ball he stole third. No one paid any attention to him. The next pitch was a strike, making the count two balls and a strike.

Then some wag in the grandstand started all the trouble by yelling, "Why don't you steal home, Eddie?"

Ainsmith decided to do that very thing. As Bender started his windup, Ainsmith dashed for the plate. The run meant nothing in the game, and Bender seeing the humor of the situation, decided to let Ainsmith get away with the play.

When Ainsmith slid over the plate in safety, Bender was still winding up. Ainsmith had gotten to his feet, brushed off his uniform, and was half way to the bench, dodging his cap to the mock applause of the crowd, before Bender finally delivered the ball.

All would have been well if the batsman didn't offer at the pitch, but he elected to swing, and filed out to left field, retiring the side.

Most of the fans left the park believing Ainsmith had stolen home, when as a matter of fact the run didn't count. Ainsmith's steal started with the windup, which ended in the batter flying out for the final out, and no runs can score on a play in which the batsman fails to reach first for the third out, as was the case in this play.

J. C. BASKETERS WIN TILT AT FULLERTON

Coach Ed Hummel's local junior college basketball team won its first game of the season yesterday afternoon, when it met the Fullerton junior college squad at Fullerton. The game was close and hard fought throughout, the Santa Ana men winning by a margin of just two points. The final score was 29 to 20.

Hummel gave almost all of his team candidates a tryout during the game. Valbert was the Santa Ana star. The following men got in the game for the locals: Kennedy, Wilson, Gulick, Valbert, Anderson, Mattux, Miller, Nelson and Byrals.

JOHNSON FAILS TO SHOW REAL CLASS

Expert Agrees Californian Had Better of Bout With Veteran Brennan

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Two judges and a referee voted that Bill Brennan of Chicago was a worse heavyweight than Floyd Johnson of California after fifteen rounds of milling last night in Madison Square Garden.

Judges made no mistake and they might not have been in error if they had given both of them the costs and sixty days.

Sitting at the ringside were James J. Corbett, Jack Johnson and Jess Willard—almost in tears at what was being built up for a crack at the heavyweight title.

Next to them sat Tommy Gibbons, who could hardly be kept from jumping into the ring.

Johnson beat Brennan beyond all doubt, but in doing it, he showed that if there is any one thing he should not do, it is to think too much about Jack Dempsey.

Because he failed to knock out the veteran old Chicago war horse is nothing against Johnson, but his failure to display any more finish is something for criticism because he is being built up for a crack at the heavyweight title next summer.

The Garden was packed with a crowd of 13,254 fans who paid $52,280. It was a good crowd in many ways as it spared the boys the torrent of the razors that is usually showered for such performances.

There was nothing worth relating about the fight part of it. Johnson hit Brennan every time he tried with a nice looking left hand but his right hand was wild. He used an upper cut effectively several times when he caught Brennan coming in, but in general his right arm might as well have been strapped down to his side.

PRAYER WEEK ENDS; HELD BIG SUCCESS

What was described as a profitable and successful week of prayer services was concluded last night with the service at the First Christian church here.

"The services have been well attended and of a fine type of devotional service," said the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of that church, today, in expressing his pleasure at the success of the services.

Last night's sermon was preached by the Rev. T. A. Ray, pastor of the Methodist church, South, of Pomona, who chose for his theme, "Seeing God."

Bringing out illustration after illustration to show that the presence of God was evident in all things and events of this world, the Rev. Mr. Ray held his congregation in constant interest with his description of the evidences of the Divine Presence and pleaded with them to see God in everything.

URGES S. A. FOLK TO HEAR REVENUE HEAD

Every resident of Santa Ana who is liable for an income tax should hear the address to be delivered by Rex Goodell, internal revenue collector, to be delivered at the junior high school here Thursday night in the opinion of J. C. Metzger, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Metzger stated that Goodell would review changes in the tax law and present other features that will be valuable in the compiling of returns.

At noon Thursday, Goodell will speak at Orange under the auspices of the Rotary club there. The next evening he will address a joint meeting of Fullerton and Anaheim citizens at the Elks' club, Anaheim.

LEAVES TO ATTEND U. S. REALTY MEET

Carl Mock, salesman with the real estate firm of Shaw and Russell, today was enroute to Jacksonville, Fla., to attend a meeting of the directors and executive committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

He was elected a member of the national committee yesterday at a meeting of the Santa Ana Realty Board. He did not anticipate the appointment, and hence was forced to make hurried preparations to leave Los Angeles on the Sunset Limited at 9 a. m. today. Other realtors from Southern California left on the same train.

At yesterday's session, which was the annual meeting, officers were elected and reports were heard. The report of J. C. Wallace, secretary, disclosed that the organization in the past year had spent $5125 in advertising Santa Ana and Orange county.

The greater portion of this expense was incurred in entertaining the convention of the California Real Estate association last December. Incidentally, Wallace showed newspaper clippings which disclosed that more than 6000 inches of news publicity had been given to the convention. Clippings from publications of national circulation were not included in his file.

Frank C. Pope, retiring treasurer, reported a cash balance of $261.42.

The following officers were chosen with date of the annual meeting and hall to be selected by them: F. C. Pope, president; E. E. Jahraus, H. J. Selway, Lev H. Wallace, vice presidents; Stanley Goode, treasurer, and J. C. Wallace, secretary.

ACCOUNTING SCHOOL CLASS DATES BARED

Dates and plans when cost accounting schools will be held in this county by R. V. Wright, farm management specialist at the University of California, under the auspices of the Orange county farm bureau, were announced as follows today by Edwin F. Whedon, secretary-manager of the bureau:

January 16, 10 a. m.—Dairy production costs and accounting, city hall, Santa Ana; January 17, 10 a. m.—Poultry production costs and accounting, city hall, Santa Ana; January 18, 9:30 a. m.—Citrus production costs and accounting, Fullerton union high school.

January 19, 9:30 a. m.—Walnut production costs and accounting, city hall, Santa Ana; January 20, 9:30 a. m.—Field crops, summaries for last year's accounting, city hall, Santa Ana.

TWO MEN ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED BRAWL

C. Frank and George McKenzie were scheduled to face Justice J. B. Cox here today on charges of disturbing the peace as a result of an alleged altercation at Placentia last night.

Deputy Sheriffs Herman Zabel and Ed McLellan were called by the proprietor of a store at Placentia, who said that the men were engaged in a brawl. Both were arrested.

AMATEUR GOLFERS TO SEEK BRITISH CROWN

The executive committee of the United States Golf association in session here today, decided to send a team to Great Britain this year and attempt to lift the British amateur golf title.

This team will also compete for the Walker Cup which was won by the Americans at Southampton last year, it was announced.

'INSTRUCTRESS' AT DANCE PAYS FINE OF $100 IN PEACE CASE

Peggy Jane Barr, 19, described as an "instructress" at a dance hall which recently came under the ban of county authorities, today was at liberty, while her three male companions, charged with disturbing the peace at Newport Beach, were in the Orange county jail, following their conviction before City Recorder Byron Hall of the beach city.

According to City Marshal J. A. Porter, Miss Barr, James Wesley Waters, 19; Henry Cummins, 20, and Frank Brooms, 17, were arrested late Thursday night in a cottage on Bay avenue, after neighbors had complained that the four were intoxicated and were creating a disturbance.

In the recorder's court, Miss Barr was given her choice of a $50 fine or fifty days in jail; Waters drew a similar sentence, Cummins was assessed $50, or twenty-five days in jail, and Brooms, youngest member of the party, was ordered held for the juvenile authorities. Friends paid Miss Barr's fine at the county jail last night and she was released.

Brooms' parents reside in Ohio, Waters lives in Anaheim and Cummins is a resident of Santa Ana.

SPEEDING BLAMED FOR NOLAN DEATH

J. L. Wineburner was driving at an excessive rate of speed when his car collided with one driven by O. H. Umberham, at the intersection of Orange avenue and Pine street, last Saturday, according to a coroner's jury which sat at an inquest into the death of John Nolan, who died as a result of injuries sustained in the accident.

Concussion of the brain and acute uremic poisoning were directly responsible for Nolan's death, the jury found. Although not directly accusing Wineburner, who has been arrested on manslaughter charges, resulting from the accident, the blame was placed on him, "in the opinion of the jury."

Mr. and Mrs. Umberham testified that their car was proceeding at about 15 miles an hour, when Wineburner, "traveling five times as fast," collided with it.

Nolan, who with his wife, was visiting at the home of the Umberhams, was taken to the Community hospital, where he died several days later.

Members of the jury were: B. E. Dawson, Clinton Imes, J. A. Powell, M. W. Sweetser, Ben H. Warner, Charles E. Morris, and N. J. Rice.

MRS. VANDERLIP'S FUNERAL PLANNED

Preparations were going forward today for funeral services to be held at the Winbigler Mission Funeral home at 2 p. m. Monday for Mrs. Amelia Vanderlip, pioneer resident of this city, who died yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Edgar.

Mrs. Vanderlip was also the mother of Frank N. and Charles Vanderlip of this city. With her husband and family she came to Tustin 41 years ago, and for the past 30 years had made her home in this city with her daughter.

QUARTETTE TO SING FOR KFAW MONDAY

KFAW has a treat for radioland next Monday night.

The quartette choir of the First Methodist church will be the main feature of the evening's program, singing a number of their best songs. Members of the quartette are Mrs. Hazel Humphreys, soprano; Miss Dorothy Mead, alto; Earl Frazer, director and tenor singer; and Walter Vierra, bass. Mrs. W. B. Snow will play the piano accompaniment.

Piano solos by Miss Effie Jessup, popular high school pianist, will add to the excellent quality of the program.

How to avoid calling on Judge J. B. Cox in court will be explained by the justice himself as he broadcasts his interpretation of the traffic laws.

DAY BY DAY GUESTS OF COUNTY INCREASE

Jailer Orin Moncrief and his assistants have early established a reputation for hospitality during their first week at managing the Orange county jail.

Yesterday there was a record of 197 persons "registered" at the vine covered inn; today that record, starting in itself, was shattered, as the score board showed 202.

All of this was despite the fact that several were dismissed as their sentences were completed, and one other paid a fine and was released.

"We're crowded," Moncrief said, "but we will take care of them as fast as they come."

No announcement was forthcoming as to the parole board's reported plan to consider paroling a number of prisoners held on misdemeanor charges.

ANNUAL BALL AT NEWPORT TO ATTRACT MANY THIS EVENING

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 13.—The attractive uniforms of yachtsmen of the Newport Harbor Yacht club will mingle with the evening dresses of their ladies tonight at East Newport, when the sixth annual inaugural ball of the organization will be held. A large number of Santa Ana people will make the trip to Newport for the dance.

The ball will be preceded by dinner, which is to be served from 5:30 to 8 p. m. Max Fisher's orchestra of Los Angeles has been engaged for the evening.

New officers to be installed are: Shirley E. Meserve, commodore; W. Starbuck Fenton, vice-commodore; William C. Warrington, rear commodore; Leon S. Hestman, secretary-treasurer; B. H. Cass, D. W. Tubbs, George E. Vibert, W. H. White, directors.

The officers of 1922 were: Frank Smith, commodore; Shirley E. Meserve, vice-commodore; W. Starbuck Fenton, rear commodore; Leon S. Hestman, secretary; Dr. Conrad Richter, J. H. Breckenridge, Al. Woodill, W. H. White, directors; William C. Warrington, fleet captain; Joseph A. Beck, port captain.

The most active season in recent years is hoped for by members of the club. Besides the annual races the members are showing much interest in the opportunity to affiliate with the naval reserve and acquire a naval vessel and instructors for Newport harbor. Plans also contemplate the organization of a naval reserve force from members of the Santa Ana high school.

CATHOLICS ATTACK OREGON SCHOOL LAW

(By United Press Leased Wire) BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 13.—Making reference to the recently enacted Oregon school law doing away with parochial schools, Archbishop Michael J. Curley today called on delegates at the ninth annual convention of the International Federation of Catholic Alumni, meeting here, to safeguard their church against what he describes as a menacing movement.

The archbishop likened anti-Catholic legislation which he said, is becoming a menace, to the beginnings of socialism.

"The teachings of the German Jew, Karl Marx," he said, "were first scoffed at, but now they are becoming a menace. It will be the same with anti-Catholic legislation unless churches are on their guard."

DIST. ATTY. VICTOR IN BALLOT RECOUNT

REDDING, Calif., Jan. 13.—Jesse W. Carter today was declared elected district attorney of Shasta county by a majority of ten votes over Harry Donnelly.

In the election count Carter had a margin of six. Donnelly contested the election and secured a recount which has been in progress this week.

In the recount Carter gained four votes.

LAGUNA CITIZEN PROTESTS AGAINST CONSTANT RESCUES BY HANDSOME PICTURE MEN

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 13.—The recent "rescue" by a young man, reputed to be a member of the cinema profession, of a companion from the surf at Laguna Beach, with the accompanying "press agent" story of the heroism of the young man and a graphic description of the dangerous coast line of Laguna has aroused one of the citizens of this little artist colony to take his typewriter in his fist and dash off a few very pointed paragraphs anent the alleged numerous moving picture "rescues" at this quiet retreat of the artist folk.

Joseph Skidmore, prominent in the life of the village, has raised his voice in protest.

"Again the expectant world is astounded to hear that another motion picture actor has nearly lost his life at Laguna Beach, battling in the dangerous waves to save the life of another," writes Mr. Skidmore.

"This constant publicity and press agent propaganda is giving Laguna Beach the reputation of being a dangerous beach, a rock-bound place, where the waves eagerly dash to the tops of the cliffs and seize their unsuspecting prey, sucking them seaward where they are conveniently rescued by the noble hero, pains being taken to film the scene and have proper press agents present."

"Is it possible that the Pacific years to gather to its watery bosom only those wedded to the celluloid film? Is it possible that led Neptune has a long-felt want for movie heroines? Why does he not leap unexpectedly upon the highest cliffs and seize in his watery fingers some of our many fair lads and lassies that visit his rocky shores? Ah, Neptune, thou art, indeed, a particular and discriminating cuss."

In the next paragraph Mr. Skidmore talks about the Nereid nymphs, Amphitrite, Thetis, Galatea or Oceanid and wonders if they, too, yearn for a handsome, ductile movie star.

It is gathered from the article that Mr. Skidmore does not favor the repetition of filmy rescues, it is said.

Above, E. A. Abbott, Los Angeles, secretary of the newly formed Southern California association of the American Power Boat association, which was formed by yachtsmen at the Newport Beach Yacht club this year. Below, Frank Smith, Los Angeles, the retiring commodore of the Newport Harbor Yacht club and the chairman of the Southern California association of the American Power Boat association. Smith is the tenth vice president of the association. These officers, together with other new and retiring officers of the Newport club, will be present tonight for the sixth annual inaugural ball.

LAGUNA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS PLAN OF LAGUNA BEACH CLUB

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 13.—Frank Hanson was selected as the paid secretary of the Laguna Beach Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of directors, held this week at the home of Joseph Skidmore. It was also decided that an office be secured for the quarters of the chamber. Literature regarding the attractions of Laguna Beach will be kept on file. The chamber will enter energetically upon the work of spreading the civil gospel of Laguna Beach, the directors decided.

The members will gather for dinner at the White House restaurant, Clark H. Dilley is president. The election of officers will take place at the regular monthly meeting in April. Mr. Skidmore was host for the directors at dinner Monday night.

PLACENTIA

The Round Table club held its regular meeting at the club house Wednesday afternoon, with a good attendance of members. After the usual business meeting the program was opened by a vocal solo by Miss Anna Thomas of Yorba Linda and an encore was responded to. Both numbers were very pleasing. The talk of the afternoon was given by Paul Howard of Los Angeles. He is a landscape architect and gardener, and gave an interesting talk on the selection and use of trees and shrubs, and answered many questions. His talk was followed by a piano solo by Miss Jepson and a piano duet by Miss Jepson and Miss May. The usual social hour was enjoyed while the hostesses, Mrs. Blatner, Mrs. Coyle and Mrs. Garenflo, served refreshments.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Travers had the pleasure of attending a reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wright, the new superintendent of the Junior Republic at Glendale by Mrs. E. M. Fowler at her beautiful country estate near Chino.

About one hundred and twenty-five members of the Placentia Mutual Orange association attended the annual business meeting and big dinner Tuesday. The business meeting was called at ten o'clock.

The principal business was the election of the board of directors. The board was re-elected and there are John C. Tuffree, president; Samuel Kraemer, vice-president; J. Sullivan, C. F. Wagner, E. A. Beck, Charles E. Fuller and William Bielefeld, directors.

The secretary and manager, H. O. Easton, submitted the yearly report with that of the auditor, C. H. Seamans, and the members adjourned to the Rosendahl club house for the usual dinner was served. The association has a membership of 156 growers, with a total of 2248 acres of citrus fruits. Shipments for the season totalled 514 cars of 400 boxes each.

F. C. Harmony spent the week-end at San Diego, and was accompanied by John S. Porter on his return.

Miss Nina McLellan entertained the members of the Placentia Country club at her home on Placentia avenue, Thursday afternoon.

Miss Melba Ferguson and brother, Ralph, are expected this week from Modesto, to visit their grandmother, Mrs. James Brunson.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kennedy and Lorene, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Smith and daughter, drove to Santa Monica, Venice, Ocean Park and Redondo on Sunday, and had dinner at the last place visited.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Edmondson entertained Mr. and Mrs. Joachim Ineyard at a duck dinner one day this week, as the result of a hunting trip to Imperial valley, from which Lewis and Jack Edmondson and Johnnie Hetebrink brought back one hundred and forty-four ducks.

MISS SMITH ARRIVES PLACENTIA, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Smith, of 223 North Melrose avenue, are the proud parents of a baby girl, born Wednesday, the 10th.

BONES OF GIANT MASTADON ARE DISCOVERED

FULLERTON, Jan. 13.—About thirty feet underground, the bones of a mastadon that once roamed the hills and dales of Orange county were found by workmen of the Union Pacific system near the Spadra road, where the company is making a cut.

The discovery was made this week and immediately two professors from the University of Southern California hastened to the scene to take charge of the bones. Two tusks found were each over six feet long.

To Investigate Further The professors will return next week to seek further for remains and to investigate further. They say the bones of the animal which the workmen found were those of a species of mastadon which lived during the period between the Miocene and Quaternary period.

Perhaps First in County The bones are the first of the kind found near Fullerton. It is believed. Such discoveries have been frequent in Southern California, however, the professors pointed out, and as a result the University of Southern California has in Los Angeles one of the best collections of the kind in the world.

More May Be Found Some local people think that other bodies will be found when the professors start their systematic investigation of the ground in which the first discovery has been made.

PAID SECRETARY FOR CHAMBER IS PLAN OF LAGUNA BEACH CLUB

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 13.—Frank Hanson was selected as the paid secretary of the Laguna Beach Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of directors, held this week at the home of Joseph Skidmore. It was also decided that an office be secured for the quarters of the chamber. Literature regarding the attractions of Laguna Beach will be kept on file. The chamber will enter energetically upon the work of spreading the civil gospel of Laguna Beach, the directors decided.

The members will gather for dinner at the White House restaurant, Clark H. Dilley is president. The election of officers will take place at the regular monthly meeting in April. Mr. Skidmore was host for the directors at dinner Monday night.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea for the night. The Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horizon. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella held steadily through the night, with the result that when day broke again, she was alone. La Foudre under cover of the darkness had struck away to the northeast with every rag of canvas on her yards.

Dawn found La Foudre close on the Dutchman's heels, not a mile astern, and the sight of her very suddenly flustered the Jongvrouw. The Dutch ship, however, showed them her rudder, and opened fire with her stern chasers. The small shot went whistling through La Foudre's shrouds with some slight damage to her canvas. Followed a broadside in the course of which the Dutchman let fly a broadside.

Five minutes after they were held tight in the clutches of La Foudre's grapnels, and the buccaners pouring noisily into her waist.

The Dutchman's master, purple in the face, stood forward to board the pirate, followed closely by an elegant pale-faced young gentleman in whom Levasseur recognized his brother-in-law elect.

From the quarter rail Mademoiselle d'Ogeron looked down with glowing eyes in breathless wonder upon her well-beloved hero. He saw her and with a glad shout sprang toward her. The Dutch master got in his way with hands upheld to arrest his progress. Levasseur did not stay to argue with him; he was too impatient to reach his mistress. He swung the poleaxe that he carried, and the Dutchman went down in blood with a cry of agony. The eager lover stepped across the body and came on his countenance joyously alight.

But mademoiselle was shrinking now, in horror. He laughed, as a hero should, with the tolerance of a god for the mortal to whom he condescends: "He stood between us. Let his death be a symbol, a warning. Let all who would stand between us mark it and beware."

It was so splendidly terrific, the gesture of it was so broad and fine and his magnetism so compelling, that she cast aside her silly tremors and yielded to his fond embrace. Thereafter he swung her to his shoulder, and stepping with ease beneath that burden, bore her in a sort of triumph, lustily cheered by his men, to the cabin of his own ship, where mademoiselle was confronted by her very brother.

"Don't you perceive your brother folly in the harm it has brought already? Lives have been lost—men have died—that this monster might overtake you."

He might have said more but that Levasseur struck him across the mouth.

Mademoiselle suppressed a scream, as the youth staggered back under the blow. He came to rest against a bulkhead, and leaned there with bleeding mouth.

With blanched cheeks the girl stood by the cabin table, and cried out to Levasseur to stop. To obey her he opened the door, and flung her brother through it.

Composing himself, he turned again with a deprecatory smile. But no smile answered him from her set face. She had seen her beloved hero's nature in curl-papers,

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PETER BLOOD is wrongly convicted of treason against the English king. He and JEREMY PITT, among others, become the slaves of COLONEL BISHOP, a Barbados planter and uncle of ARABELLA, interesting friendship springs up. A Spanish ship conquers the island but is captured through the strategy of Blood, who heads a boarding party of slaves. DON DIEGO, commander of the vessel, who was taken from the ship, attempts to betray Captain Blood and his fellows but fails. Blood sails to Tortuga, headquarters of buccaners, where he joins with LEVASSEUR, another adventurer.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV. Levasseur's Hopes. It would be somewhere about ten o'clock on the following morning, a full hour before the time appointed for sailing, when a canoe brought up alongside La Foudre, and a half-caste Indian stepped out and went up the ladder. He was the bearer of a folded scrap of paper for Captain Levasseur.

Its contents may be roughly translated thus: "My well-beloved—I am in the Dutch brig Jongvrouw, which is about to sail. Resolved to separate forever, my cruel father is sending me to Europe in the brother's charge. I implore you, come to my rescue. Deliver me, my well-beloved hero!—Your devoted Madeleine, who loves you."

The well-beloved hero was moved to the soul of him by that passionate appeal. His scowling glance swept the bay for the Dutch brig, which he knew had been due to sail for Amsterdam with a cargo of hides and tobacco. She was nowhere to be seen among the shipping in that narrow, rock-bound harbor. He roared out the question in his mind.

In answer the half-caste pointed out beyond the frothing surf that marked the position of the reef constituting one of the strongholds of the main defenses. Away beyond it, a mile or so distant, a sail was standing out to sea.

During in his soul the association to which he had entered, Levasseur was already studying ways of evasion. Blood would never suffer violence to be done in his presence to a Dutchman; but it might be done in his absence.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea for the night. The Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horizon. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella held steadily through the night, with the result that when day broke again, she was alone. as it were, and she found the spectacle disgusting and terrifying. He crushed her to him brutally, deliberately hurtful because she resisted, and kissed her whilst she writhed in his embrace.

Some one knocked. Cursing the interruption, Levasseur strode off to open. Cahusac, his lieutenant, came to him, and he sprang a leap between wind and water, the consequence of damage sustained from one of the Dutchman's shots. In alarm Levasseur went off with him.

Ahead of them a low cloud swayed on the horizon, which Cahusac pronounced one of the northernmost of the Virgin Islands. "We must run for shelter there, and career her," said Levasseur. "A storm may catch us before we make land."

A storm or something else," said Cahusac grimly. "Have you noticed that?" He pointed away to starboard.

Levasseur looked, and caught his breath. Two ships that at the distance seemed of considerable burden were heading toward them some five miles away.

The squaring of a circle is a problem belonging to mathematics. It is quite possible, however, to square the word "circle," in the above word square. The remarkable formation of the letter E is an additional help toward finding the missing words. Fill in the stars with the correct letters, and you will find six words reading the same from left to right as from top to bottom.

Yesterday's answer:
If a train travels from Philadelphia toward New York, 90 miles away, at 60 miles an hour, with a 15-minute stop; and another starts from New York to Philadelphia at 50 miles an hour, which will be farthest from Philadelphia when they meet? Each train will be exactly the same distance from Philadelphia. The mathematical calculations have nothing to do with the problem!

EVENING SALUTATION

Men can be as original now as ever, if they had but the courage, even the insight. Heroic souls in old times had no more opportunities than we have; but they used them. There were daring deeds to be done then—are there none now? Wrongs to be redressed—are there none now?
—Charles Kingsley.

PLANNING THE GARDEN

In the days of our foremothers, each month had its appointed duties, never to be transferred. December was pretty well devoted to Christmas preparation. The sewing was of presents, the baking was of plum puddings and dark, delicious cakes and Christmas cookies of many a gay design. January went into planning and organizing.

There was not quite so much "budgeting" as now, perhaps, because there was less handling of money. But the year's work was planned, materials were purchased for the linen closet and the dresser drawers. When February dawned, slack was the woman who had not planned her "spring sewing" and had it well in hand. Then came the seed catalogues.

Nowadays, the magazines and newspapers of January are full of garden plans. The advertising for spring planting is of a character to pull the last dollar from a miser's purse.

"What is to be compared with a peach tree in bloom? So cheerful, so promising! Use fruit-bearing trees instead of mere ornamental plants. They are gorgeous in blossom and again in fruit." Sounds sensible, doesn't it?

Consider this raspberry lyric: "Cool and fragrant, deliciously fresh from your own garden, out there whence the wren's ecstatic song pours in through the open windows, they delight the senses of sight, taste and smell."

Then there are "Evergreens that express ideas," gorgeous dahlias, named for ancient gods, zinnias, roses, golden bantam corn—who can resist?

This is the time to do the planning. When spring comes, it is too late to plan and organize. One wants the out-door weather for action.

Mother may prefer a quick round of the stores to a long and laborious session with the sewing machine. Father may prefer the movies to chess. But no unspoiled American can be happy without the seed catalogue. If the only garden possible be a box on the kitchen window, never mind. Life has few joys compared with those of planning the garden.

Sometimes, as we look at international affairs, we're not altogether sure that man is a rational creature.

The astrologers forecast a fine year for President Harding; and then the first thing the new year did was to take a Fall out of the cabinet.

THE NEW OPPORTUNITY

All our big business men agree that there is never any lack of business opportunity. But the nature of the opportunity may vary a good deal from year to year.

In the present year, suggests Rober Babson, there will be as many chances to make money as there ever were, but they will not be the chances of the recent boom years. There will be fewer big, spectacular master-strokes. There will be less of a free sweep. Profits now will be made mostly by paying attention to details and stopping small leaks. They will be mainly profits of economy. And the big field in which to be economical and efficient, Mr. Babson points out, as many others have done, it is in the field of distribution. He who gets any commodity more directly and inexpensively from producer to consumer can make money, and will richly deserve it for his service.

If Europe starts another war, it can go to Asia for the money.

LACKS ORGANIZATION

With all their apparent bullheadedness and disregard of public rights, the coal miners and operators are not altogether to blame for their disagreements. The New York World, never a mild critic, suggests that "unions and operators do not disagree because the devil is in them, but because there is something radically wrong with the whole industry. The trouble with the nation's coal is an economic trouble, not to be solved by exhortation."

That is probably true in the last analysis, though exhortation may help in furthering any particular settlement and tiding over a critical period.

The industry as a whole is chaotic, compared with the oil, meat, steel, railroad and other vital industries of the country. It is unorganized, unregulated, unstandardized, unmodernized.

That Italian who committed suicide because he couldn't learn to speak English in New York simply used bad judgment in picking out his town.

AT THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

With Governor Richardson holding the reins, the sessions of the new California Legislature promise to be unusually interesting.

Governor Richardson has pledged himself to rid the state government of extravagance; more, he has promised to reduce the running expenses of the state government millions of dollars.

That he has no more than a bare majority of assemblymen who believe with him that there has been extravagance in state government, or, if believing, are unwilling to co-operate in reducing it, was shown by the inability of Assemblyman Merriam, in his fight for speakership, with Governor Richardson back of him, to muster more than forty-two out of eighty votes.

There has been more or less fear over the state that the new governor would tear things to pieces, not only to reduce expenses but to set aside progressive legislation that he may not like or that some of his strong political friends do not like. However, the Governor's friends say he will hew close to the economy line and will not make any effort to kill any of the progressive measures enacted under Governor Johnson's leadership. The chances are that many of the expressed fears are unfounded.

If any effort is made to do away with the Johnson legislation, and if, for any reason, Richardson should back any such movement, he will quickly lose the support of some of those who stood with him in electing Merriam. For instance, those who know Dr. C. D. Ball, assemblyman from this county, know that he would not stay with Richardson in any such fight, though he was with the administration forces for Merriam.

Many of those who were convinced that Richardson in his campaign against Governor Stephens had painted conditions to be far more grave than they really were, are willing and anxious to give him the chance to make good his promises. If the state government needs the treatment that Richardson proposes to give it, stones ought not to be put in the way.

And while we are discussing the situation at Sacramento, we will find an editorial written by Lyman M. King, editor of the Redlands Facts, interesting. King served for a number of years as state senator, and his analysis of the California Legislature is to be ranked as that of an expert. He says:

There is much of a tendency in California to belittle the lawmaking body. This should not be. It may not be the highest body of the kind in the land, but it is far from being the lowest. The men who have undertaken service in the legislature, generally speaking, are fairly representative of the citizenship from which they come. To condemn them is to condemn one's own immediate neighbors. A few men go to the legislature for what they get out of it—most of them are disappointed. It is a good training for a young lawyer, for it gives him a few dollars to live upon and some practice in the study of the laws.

There are some men who go there to serve special interests. For instance the insurance people always get in one or two or three and the public service corporations always mix in a few of their men, but as a matter of fact are just as much entitled to do so as is any other walk of life.

There is always a majority of honest, intelligent men, many of them acquainted with the business of lawmaking or with the big problems in taxation, insurance, farm legislation or education which they must handle. But the men and women are seriously willing to give the best there is in them, and they do it—and as they were elected by free agents to the offices they hold, we should not complain.

Young newspaper reporters who have no comprehension of their own job except to seek out a sensational line and harp upon it, criticize the honest, well-meaning efforts of fair-minded legislators and these things naturally get into the public mind. From this comes much of the feeling of discontent with the legislature.

There are a few men in each legislature who are without moral principle—not many. They "have their hands out" for anything they can get, legitimately or otherwise.

There are lawyers who use the acquaintance they there make—and that is legitimate if they do not neglect their work and do not shape legislation favorable to special interests.

In the main the legislature is made up of honest, sincere citizens, doing the best they can for all the people, and we cannot ask much more than that.

When we do ask more, we must reorganize our scheme of law-making and put it in the hands of specialists.

The Case of Keller

San Francisco Chronicle.

Representative Oscar E. Keller of St. Paul, Minnesota, is a fair specimen of the petty politicians which some American constituencies habitually send to Washington to make laws for us. The Department of Justice has for a long time been collecting evidence against war profiteers suspected of fraud, and those under suspicion are naturally anxious to find out what has been discovered.

Obviously it would be a neat thing to accuse the Attorney-General of doing nothing, which might compel him to defend himself by showing what he had done.

If that was the intent it did not work. Instead of attacking the attorney-general the judiciary committee requested Representative Keller to appear and disclose the evidence upon which the committee must take the responsibility of reporting a resolution of impeachment. When he would not come they had him subpoenaed. When Keller still would not come the committee reported that it had found no evidence that the attorney-general had done anything improper, but that Representative Keller had defied the authority of the house, for which he should be disciplined.

Of course, such men are not worthy of much bothering with. And yet, if the House of Representatives has any regard for its own dignity, it cannot afford to ignore such a flagrant offense as that of this Keller person.

Hail the Boy Scout

Redlands Facts.

Have you a boy in your family of Scout age or younger?

If you have you are to be congratulated that he lives in this day when there is such a wholesome influence thrown about boys. For the Boy Scout movement does give the lad a chance to enjoy the out-of-door things that he takes to naturally and that are probably the finest things he can enjoy at his impressionable age.

Men and women who have had an opportunity to observe the work of the Scouts and the results in character building, are enthusiastic about it. They see the trend of the boy's mind into wholesome, natural channels. Not that a boy's mind inclines otherwise, but it is mighty easy to send it toward the vulgar and the degrading. Courtesy, manliness, kindness—the strictest honesty, abhorrence of a lie—these are some of the fine things that Scouting brings about so naturally and easily the boy thinks in those terms.

Can you conceive of anything finer for your boy, or anything more upbuilding of the citizenship of the nation?

Bob's Arithmetic

Visalia Delta.

A news artist famous for the human touch shows in one of his sketches a father and son hard at work under the living room lamp, trying to solve son's arithmetic problems. Underneath the sketch is the legend, "Bob has a hard time with his arithmetic." Judging by the furrows on the father's brow, he is not having such an easy time himself.

A little help at home means much to the Bobs and their sisters, though of course it should always stop short of doing their work for them. If parents gave it more freely they would have more sympathy with the children's difficulties, especially as they discovered, like the father in the picture, that the difficulties were genuine.

Some parents excuse themselves on the plea that modern methods are different from the ones they learned. Their rusty ignorance should be the more reason for taking a hand. When fathers and mothers fail to keep step with progress in school or other matters concerning their boys and girls, they lay the foundations for the attitude of superiority and aloofness which it pains them later to see in their children.

Education vs Luxury

Visalia Delta.

"Education is the vital element in the success of any nation," said the Hon. John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, in a public speech, pointing to vocational training and industrial teaching in such manufacturing and industrial centers as Detroit as an example of the practical value of education.

Continuing, the commissioner quoted statistics proving that the one and one-half billion dollars spent on education in the nation last year, while a large sum in itself, was pitiful when compared with the twenty-two billions spent for luxuries.

"From these statistics," he said, "it would appear that the country cares more for chewing gum, cigars and cigarettes, and cosmetics than it does for education."

Educators have seized upon this comparison as a striking argument in favor of the passage of the Towner-Sterling bill, now before congress, creating a department of education, with a secretary in the president's cabinet. The bill appropriates a hundred million dollars to be spent among the states in the aid of education. One hundred millions is the two hundred and twentieth part of last year's country-wide bill for luxuries.

Dr. Tigert drew attention to the "insidious propaganda" spread by "some agency" against the expenditure of large sums by the government in aid of education, and termed the proper and wise use of money in education as the salvation of the country against many of the evils of ignorance, intolerance, and fanaticism, which menace its prosperity.

Worth While Verse

IT'S ALWAYS FAIRYLAND

Tell me where you are going, pray,
Little lass of mine,
Wandering down the meadowlands
In the bright sunshine.
Butterflies are following you,
Bees, they buzz about,
Just to learn what fairyland
You are seeking out.

Don't you know, my little one,
Wandering out to play,
That it is a fairyland
All along your way?
Where your smiles and dimples are,
Where your two eyes shine,
It is always fairyland,
Little lass of mine.

ONE KEYHOLE MISSING.

Mike had saved up a little money, and when Pat came over a few years later the two brothers went into the coal business. One day Mike bought a rolitop desk and when it arrived he said to Pat:

"Put one desk will do for the two of us. And here are two keys, one for you, Pat, and one for me."
Pat accepted the key, but seemed to be studying the desk.
"That's all right, Mike," he said, "but where is my keyhole?"

ABSENT-MINDED.

"The absent-mindedest story I ever heard," said the old man—"Was that of Isaac Newton when he held an egg in his hand while he boiled his watch for four minutes," interrupted the young man, who knew the old man's repertoire. "But I heard one the other day of a famous English lord bishop who was hurried from a cornerstone laying to an ordination. Placing his hands on the head of the young aspirant for the ministry, the bishop said: 'We pledge thee, Lord, that this block is well and truly laid.'"
"And that same bishop," added the old man, "was riding on a train when he lost his ticket."
"I assure you, Lord Bishop," said the polite conductor, "it doesn't make the slightest difference."
"Oh, but it does," said the bishop. "Until I find that ticket I shan't know where I'm going!"

STOP that TAX LEAK

Know Your Rights and Save Money
By Ewell D. Moore

SECOND ARTICLE.

INDIVIDUALS MAY MASTER THEIR OWN TAX PROBLEMS

In this series of articles on the nation's increasing tax burdens technical terms and discussions will be avoided as much as possible. The purpose is to inform the average taxpayer in plain language upon the essentials of the law and its workings; to offer practical suggestions, and point the way toward minimizing the burden by paying a just tax, and no more.

Thousands have overpaid; hundreds of thousands have escaped paying. The latter are profiting on the former. This cannot continue.

There is no such thing as a perfect tax law; nor is there, as yet, a simple income tax law. On the contrary, ours is a particularly complex one. But it can be made both simple and plain.

No matter what tax reforms may be brought about, tariff, sales tax, or whatnot, it is certain that the income tax will long remain the chief source of governmental revenue. It is this and its effects, therefore, that will be discussed first.

It is but a matter of nine years—1913—since the first income tax law, levying a tax on incomes of individuals, was enacted. Since 1913 the law has been revised or entirely rewritten four times.

Income taxes were imposed during the Civil War. In 1894 an income tax law was passed by congress, which the supreme court promptly declared unconstitutional. The Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution was finally passed in 1912 and ratified by the required number of states in 1913. The "1913 Income Tax Law" was revised in 1916, and practically a new law enacted in 1917—the first of the "War Taxes"—and again in 1918. The present law, passed in 1921, is all new. Already there is talk of revision. We shall have revision, and perhaps a new law in 1923.

These changes have brought neither simplification nor permanency of method. Taxpayers cannot keep pace with the changing provisions, the numerous court decisions, and a multitude of rulings and regulations by the Treasury department.

The average taxpayer cannot hope to master, first, an intricate law; and second, the technical interpretation of courts, collectors, agents and bureaucrats. This task to the average man is hopeless. In the past five years the literature of the income tax has grown from a few volumes to a great library, and is still growing at an amazing rate.

What Are My Rights?
What are my obligations to the government, and what are my rights under the Income Tax law? How can I cut down my burden of taxes and still comply with the law? Is it possible to avoid governmental investigations and assessments of additional taxes? Isn't there too much regulation of business?

These are the questions that taxpayers are asking everywhere. I propose to answer them under a general discussion of the "Income Tax," with separate articles on the following subjects:

1. Can the law be simplified and equalized?
 2. Are you taking advantage of the law's Relief Provisions?
 3. Who pays the income tax, and how many escape paying?
 4. Inherited wealth escapes, and the Business and Salaried man pays.
 5. Effect of the High Rates on Business.
 6. Excessive taxes dry up the sources of income.
 7. The Evil of Tax-exempt bonds; they increase local taxes and encourage municipal extravagance.
 8. Surplus capital taken out of industry and put in tax-exempt securities.
 9. Form of doing business important.
 10. State income taxation to become universal.
 11. Taxes can be minimized by knowing the law.
 12. The Sales Tax; its advantages and disadvantages.
- Under these and other headings the tax problem will be adequately simplified, and the reader will be able to apply the information to his own particular tax relations with a definite understanding of his duty to himself and to the government.

So' by So' by East by West,
There's auff shaft the scuttle-but

The fore-top-gallant marlin-spike is loo'ward of the rail,
It's ho my bullies, hi my bullies,
reef the anchor brail!

Ye ho, the garboard strake is gone, the mizzen poop is free,
The mainspring of the starboard
watch is sinkin' in the sea,
Clew down the royal fo'c's'l blits,
belay the fukes, belay!
It's ho my bullies, hi my bullies,
rollin' down the way!

Ye ho, the spanker spans the

The weather sky-s'l braces are a whangin' down the bib,
Abeam, abeam the stuns-ls clash
against the capstan keys,
It's ho my bullies, hi my bullies,
jibe her to the breeze!

Hard down, hard down the davits pull, the gunnells flap an'
roll,
The main-top's in the booby hatch,
ware shoal, ye scum, ward shoal!

She's vesting So' by East by Nor', ye ho, my lads, ye ho!
We'll sing a deep-sea chantey

Adventures of the Twins

A Geography Lesson

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Please give us some geography," said Nancy to Mike Mole.

"Certainly, ma'am," said Mike obligingly. "What about?"

"Oh, about the earth and moon and stars and things," answered she.

"Well, ma'am, I don't see well enough to know much about the moon and stars, but I do know about the earth, being as how I live in it."

"All right," said Nancy. "Now everybody keep quiet," she commanded, turning to the rest of the pupils in Dreamland School. "Listen to what Mike Mole has to say. You may learn something."

Nobody wanted to learn anything but they all listened anyway—for a minute.

"The earth is soft in summer and hard in winter," said Mike importantly.

"We all know that," shouted everybody.

"Oh, hush, please!" said Nancy. "Go on, Mike."

"The earth is very light on top and dark underneath," went on Mike.

"The earth is very light on top and dark underneath," went on Mike.

"We all know that, too!" yelled the school.

"Nick, you will please keep order," said Nancy. "If they won't behave we'll have to have a lesson on manners."

"We'll keep still!" promised Chirk Chipmunk. "We don't like manners as well as geography even."

"Then proceed!" said the teacher. So Mike went on, uninterrupted this time.

"The earth is full of things—earth-worms and grubs and beetles and roots and stones and holes. Sometimes it is full of mountains and rivers, and sometimes it is full of diamonds and rubies, and sometimes it is full of potatoes and carrots. These things are a nuisance. All that count are earth-worms, which I like very much."

Mike bowed and sat down, smoothing his velvet coat. He liked Dreamland, but he wished spring would come so he could go back home. There were no worms in Dreamland!

"Very good, Mike," said Nancy. "I'll mark you a hundred."
